GALE-SWEPT FLAMES BLIZZARD SWEEPS STATE INVALID PERISHES IN FIRE THAT DESTROYS FARM HOUSE FRIDAY

WRECK RESORT WITH LOSS OF $2,000,000

Massachusetts Beach Resort Destroyed; Fireman Hurt

NANTASKET BEACH, Mass., Nov. 29.—Investigation by state, town, county and steamboat authorities was launched today into the spectacular fire of undetermined origin which, fanned by a forty-mile-an-hour gale, last evening did damage estimated at close to two million dollars and threatened for five hours to sweep this seaside resort from end to end.

Five passenger steamboats, known to thousands of excursionists from all sections of the country as "The Sweetheart Fleet," the Nantasket Steamboat Company's pier, shed, office, coal pocket and waiting room, a powerboat, the men's section of the State bath house, and three houses in the Atlantic Hill section were icy coated ruins today.

Damage had also been done by the flames over a two-mile area to St. Mary's of Assumption Church, a sixth steamboat, Hotel Massol, summit house and a series of cottages and other buildings along Atlantic Avenue, Atlantic Road, Valley Beach and Atlantic Hill, blazing embers falling over the wide area.

Lieutenant William J. Hatch, a fireman, was seriously injured and was in Cohasset Hospital today. Two policemen were less seriously hurt and a dozen firemen were temporarily overcome by smoke.

Heavy firemen from eight southern cities and towns, some of them ice coated, were still pouring streams of water into the ruins today as insurance against a fresh outbreak.

Estimates of the damage ran from $1,250,000 to more than $2,000,000. Steamboat company officials estimated the value of the steamboats destroyed—The Betty Alden, Nantasket, Rose Standish, Mary Chilton, and Old Colony—at a million dollars with a replacement value of about two million dollars.

Stories of heroism were recorded. Firemen Hatch, injured by falling through a roof of a bath house, was rescued by his mates. Fireman Frank Thompson rescued from the blazing bath house Police Sergeant Thomas Kelleher, who fractured his arm.

A group of firemen rescued three of their companions who fell into the icy sea from a dory along side the burning steamboat Old Colony.

Prize Corn Raiser

Years of city life in Albany, N. Y., proved no drawback to Miss Evelyn Clark, now of a farm near Omaha, Neb., when she entered her corn in an Omaha contest. Her seven ears of corn were adjudged the most perfectly marked, having 32 different colored kernels.

WEALTHY MAN KILLS WIFE AND SUICIDES IN CHICAGO HOTEL

Ill Health, Market Losses Blamed For Double Tragedy

CHICAGO, Nov. 29.—Records indicating heavy losses on the stock market today offered a possible motive for the double tragedy in which James B. Pauley, wealthy coal mine operator, shot and killed his wife and himself in their hotel suite here yesterday.

The double shooting occurred as the middle-aged couple was dressing preparatory to leaving for the home of friends where they were to be guests at Thanksgiving dinner.

Pauley, who is chairman of the Miami Coal Co., is believed to have yielded to a sudden impulse when he shot his wife, according to Coroner Herman N. Bundesen. Grief-stricken Mrs. Pauley's hand when her body was found was a magazine opened at a crossword puzzle which she had been working. There was a bullet wound in her right temple.

Clad in a dressing gown, the body of Pauley was found on the bathroom floor. Beside him was a 32 calibre revolver with two empty chambers. It was evident, according to police, that Pauley had shot his wife and then walked into the bathroom and killed himself before a mirror.

An impatient chauffeur waiting to drive them to their friends' home for dinner, was responsible for the investigation that revealed the tragedy.

Pauley's recent ill health together with numerous documents found in the apartment showing heavy stock transactions are believed by police to furnish a motive for the tragedy.

Mrs. Pauley, before her marriage to the coal magnate, was Elinor Ludlow, a famed Ohio beauty. The late Governor Asa Bushnell of Ohio was her uncle. Before her marriage to Pauley she had been reported engaged to Captain Richmond Pearson Hobson, hero of the Merrimac in the Spanish American War.

PENNSYLVANIA MAY HAVE DEMOCRAT FOR SENATOR IS REPORT

Unseating Of Vare Would Put Wilson In Upper House

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—A life-long Democrat will represent the solidly Republican state of Pennsylvania in the senate for the first time in modern history if a Democratic-Insurgent coalition succeeds in its present plan to unseat Senator-elect William S. Vare (R) in favor of William B. Wilson, Democrat and a member of the wartime cabinet of Woodrow Wilson.

Leaders of the coalition announced today they would try to unseat Wilson on the ground that Vare's official election was voided by fraud, irregularities and corruption. There appeared little likelihood of the coalition-winning, because Vare rolled up an official majority of 200,000 votes, which will have to be thrown out by the senate before Wilson would be entitled to the senatorial seat, such a result appeared impossible.

The whole contest, which opens in the senate next Tuesday, revolves around the question of election frauds in Pittsburgh and Philadelphia, the two machine-controlled cities which gave tremendous majorities to Vare in his 1926 election. This clash over the seat incidentally has no connection with the effort to bar Vare because of excessive expenditures in the preceding primary. Consequently, even if the Vare-Wilson contest is decided in the Republican's favor, he probably will be rejected because of the primary contest.

The fight of Wilson for a senatorial toga will be handled by Senator-elect (R) of Nebraska, insurgent leader, and Senator Cargill (D) of Arkansas. Both were hopeful of seating the Democrat. One report had it that they would contend Wilson had won by a bare majority of 903 votes with all the allegedly illegal Vare votes ignored.

In order to win, Wilson must have the senate decide to throw out all votes cast in Allegheny County (Pittsburgh) on the ground of corruption, since 13 percent of all the Republican voters were paid fees on that election day as watchers or messengers.

All votes cast in 300 Philadelphia precincts (precincts), because the ballot boxes were delivered to city hall before 10 p. m. on the election—indicating the ballots couldn't have been counted.

All votes in thirty-eight Philadelphia precincts, where voters were listed alphabetically in the voters' checklist, indicating ballot stuffing.

All votes in 100 Philadelphia precincts where poll tax receipts were proven irregular, indicating fraudulent voting.

All votes in sixty Philadelphia precincts where election officials served as registrars or were not themselves registered voters.

The double shooting occurred as the middle-aged couple was dressing preparatory to leaving for the home of friends where they were to be guests at Thanksgiving dinner.

CARBON MONOXIDE GAS OVERCOMES EIGHT IN BUS

CLEVELAND, Nov. 29.—Eight persons, two of them women, passengers on a Pittsburgh-Detroit bus were overcome by carbon monoxide here today when the bus was pulled into a garage for repairs.

All of the passengers were fed oxygen at Charity Hospital in resuscitation treatments. None was reported in a serious condition.

A few minutes after the bus had entered the garage to have a broken windshield repaired, attendants noticed the driver of the bus and the passengers slumped over in their seats in curiously quiet attitudes.

Police and fire squads were summoned immediately to render first aid. It is believed that the deadly gas poured into the bus from beneath the cab.

Those overcome are: Henry Manion, Detroit; William Webber, Cumberland, Md.; Louise Wilson, Philadelphia; William Anderson, Detroit; F. E. Molter, Youngstown; Tyne Hantulla, Detroit; and Walter Moetus, Cleveland.

POLA NEGRI BRINGS SUIT FOR DIVORCE; PRINCE BESPOKEN

Exotic Foreign Film Star Found Him Incompatible

PARIS, Nov. 29.—Pola Negri, exotic beauty of the screen, today filed suit for divorce from her husband, Prince Midvanti.

The film star asked a decree under her real name, Appoline Chaluppe.

Miss Negri based her application on the grounds of incompatibility. Filing of the divorce action had been expected for some time, as the impetuous Polish screen star and her husband, scion of a family from the country of Georgia, once a Russian province, have been separated for a considerable period.

Some time ago Miss Mary McCormick, famous opera singer, and protégé of Mary Garden, announced that she would be married to the prince as soon as he had been divorced from Miss Negri. At the time, Miss McCormick jokingly told International News Service she would force the prince to change his name to "McDivans" in order that her children might bear an appellation that had an Irish ring.

Miss McCormick was born in Belleville, Ark. Her present residence is in Paris.

This was Miss Negri's second venture into matrimony. Her first husband was Baron Popper, a Polish army officer, from whom she was divorced before she came to America as a movie discovery of Ernest Lubitsch, the well-known director.

During her years of success in Hollywood, Miss Negri was variously reported engaged to many famous screen stars, including Charles Chaplin and Rudolph Valentino. Miss Negri's pilgrimage from Hollywood to New York to be present at Valentino's funeral, when she declared that death had robbed her of the "world's greatest lover," will long remain a saga of moviedom.

Miss Negri has spent the greater part of the last two years in Europe, negotiating with British and French motion picture producers concerns to make films. She recently told interviewers here she was tired of Hollywood, and that she found in European studios a more sympathetic reaction to her exotic temperament.

Through its diplomatic officials, Great Britain has kept in constant touch with Nanking, the seat of the present Chinese government, and considerable surprise was expressed when word came through that the heralded peace agreement was a matter concerning which the president of China and his cabinet were in total ignorance.

At Nanking, according to the information here, a wireless message was picked up from the Soviet broadcasting station at Harbin, which was interpreted as a "peace" feeling, but so far as the Nationalist government is concerned, the settlement has not reached a more tangible state.

Efforts to reconcile this development with the detailed dispatches from Moscow and Mukden concerning the settlement leads to the belief that Manchurian officials took the matter into their own hands and capitulated to the Soviets rather than sustain further defeats in border conflicts.

OHIO GRIPPED WITH FIRST WINTER WAVE AND MERCURY FALLS

"White Thanksgiving" Unusual; Traffic Is Suffering

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 29.—A raging blizzard blustered through northern Ohio last night and early today leaving behind a trail of heavy snow and the cold breath of winter.

The temperature dropped to 18.

A spread of snow of from three to more than six inches depth, presented northern Ohio as a "study in white" today. It gave, incidentally, this section of the state its first "white Thanksgiving" in years.

Aside from the beauty of the snow-covered landscape, however, the drifts presented a grave problem to city and county officials. Traffic was badly hampered this morning as it attempted to plow through the drifts. Thousands of laborers set out early to lift the six-inch blanket from highways, roads and streets.

Automobiles were forced to creep cautiously and passenger buses arrived at their destinations hours late. Scores of minor wrecks were reported.

Weather forecasters predicted this morning that the thermometer will probably send the mercury to between 10 and 15 degrees before the current cold snap will end.

Eleven fires in Cleveland were caused by overheated furnaces which were stoked up by Thanksgiving holiday celebrants.

The greatest burden from the snow-sheathed highways and streets—next to the shovellers and scrapers—fell upon automobile clubs and garages throughout northern Ohio. Calls after calls were received from snow-stuck motorists.

In Youngstown, at least one traffic fatality was blamed on the blizzard. August Vollett, 43, died of injuries received when a hit-skip driver skidded into him.

A near tragedy was narrowly avoided in Akron when a large Cleveland-Akron bus skidded and plunged toward the railing on a viaduct. The bus with its eight passengers was saved from a 100-foot dive over the viaduct when it crashed into a pole.

The most serious of the fires which broke out in Cleveland was that which destroyed a shed in the Dwight Hinkley lumber yard here. The blaze, whipped by the snowstorm, caused $200,000 damages.

Twenty students were routed by a blaze which broke out in the Alpha Delta Phi fraternity house on the Western Reserve University campus here. Damage was estimated at more than $2,500. No one was injured.

CHICAGO, Nov. 29.—Zero temperatures and snow storms which turned to blizzards held the middle west region in the grip of winter today.

Driven before a severe wind, a blizzard swept Iowa, Nebraska, Missouri and the Dakotas last night. The storm center was reported between Sioux City, Ia., and Aberdeen, S. D., with a snowfall that measured four inches in some places.

Temperatures in the Chicago region stood near the zero point. At Duluth, Minn., a temperature of 11 degrees below zero was reported.

STATE INVALID PERISHES IN FIRE THAT DESTROYS FARM HOUSE FRIDAY

May Reach Senate

Mrs. Nellie Taylor Ross, former Democratic governor of Wyoming, is being discussed as a candidate for the senate seat left vacant by the death of Senator Francis Warren. If elected, she would be the first woman to sit in the senate. In 1922, Mrs. Rebecca Felton, of Georgia, served for one day by special recognition.

GIRL FLYERS BRING PLANE DOWN AFTER FLIGHT IS FAILURE

Endurance Attempt Is Halted By Inability To Obtain Fuel

METROPOLITAN AIRPORT, LOS ANGELES, Nov. 29.—Ending their fifth attempt to lower the world's refuelling endurance flight record, Bobby Trout, of Los Angeles, and Elinor Smith, of New York brought their Sunbeam biplane to earth here at 3:45 a. m. today, after having been aloft continuously for forty-two hours and five minutes.

The girl flyers' brave effort to better the mark of 420 hours and twenty-one minutes, set up by Dale Jackson and Forrest O'Brien in St. Louis, ended in failure because of a dwindling fuel supply that could not be replenished. Their regular refuelling ship had met with accident and it was impossible to establish contact with the substitute "nurse" plane on account of bumpy air.

Despite failure to attain their self-set goal of 500 hours of continuous flying, the young aviators had set up two new records in their adventure. Their time in the air represented the world's refuelling endurance mark for women and the world's sustained flight record for women, which formerly was twenty-seven hours, established by Miss Smith herself over Roosevelt Field, New York.

Undaunted by the misfortune which dogged them, both girls emerged from the cockpit of their craft, smiling to a great crowd which had gathered at the airport, despite the early morning hour. They disdained assistance of field mechanics who sought to help them out of their plane and fairly jumped to the ground.

Their long ordeal in the air seemed to leave little trace of fatigue on their pretty faces. A few minutes after their perfect landing they announced their intention of starting another record attempt next Saturday morning.

DANNEMORE PRISON HAS RIOT THREAT

DANNEMORE, N. Y., Nov. 29.—State troopers were on the alert at Dannemore Prison today to guard against another outbreak among the 1,300 prisoners.

Protected by the guns of the guards, a score of telephone line-men and repairmen hustled themselves in repairing the damage reported to have been done by the prisoners yesterday.

What looked like the forerunner of another riot broke out when prison authorities released from solitary confinement a dozen of the ringleaders in last July's riot in which three convicts were killed. The ringleaders immediately began to upbraid their fellow prisoners because of the failure of their plot to escape and the guards were forced to step in to restore order.

Mrs. Newton Smith, 75, Victim Of Lower Bellbrook Pike Blaze

Mrs. Minerva Smith, about 75, was burned to death when a fire, following what is believed to have been an explosion of a coal oil cook stove in the kitchen, destroyed the six-room, two-story farm residence in which she made her home with her two sons, Ollie and Roy, on a farm on the Lower Bellbrook Pike, five miles southwest of Xenia, at 10 o'clock Friday morning.

The aged woman, who had been a semi-invalid for a number of years because of rheumatism, was alone in the house at the time and was in the kitchen engaged in preparing the noon meal when her sons left on a trip to Spring Valley.

Half an hour later it is presumed the stove either exploded, burning her so badly that she was trapped in the room and unable to escape, or that her clothing became ignited from the flames, which subsequently set fire to the house.

The farm house, situated atop a high hill, was a mass of flames when the blaze was first noticed by Samuel Kane, a neighbor. Fanned by a stiff wind, the flames gained headway and neighboring farmers who gathered at the residence watched helplessly, unable to combat the fire and unaware that anyone was inside.

The Smith brothers returned home before the house was completely burned down with its contents.

The charred body of the woman, burned almost beyond recognition, was discovered when the ruins were searched. The remains were removed to the undertaking establishment of Ralph M. Neeld, pending completion of funeral arrangements.

Loss to the building and contents is estimated at several thousand dollars. It is not known whether the property was insured.

Mrs. Smith is survived, besides her two sons, by two daughters, Mrs. Benjamin Kennedy, of the Union neighborhood, and Mrs. Mollie Owens, Chicago, Ill.; and a niece, Mrs. John A. Simson, Dayton Ave., Xenia. Her husband, Newton Smith, preceded her in death about eight years. Another son, John, also died several years ago.

Coroner Frank M. Chambliss and L. A. Davis, county road patrolman, were summoned, the coroner giving a verbal verdict of accidental death.

ICE BREAKS; THREE PERISH

AUGUSTA, Me., Nov. 29.—Mr. and Mrs. Eugene H. Parlin, are in a serious condition today having nearly sacrificed their lives in a frantic but unsuccessful attempt to rescue their three little daughters who were drowned before the mother's eyes when they fell through the thin ice on two-mile brook. The children were Beatrice, 5, Irene, 6, and Catharine, 8.

Mrs. Parlin, who was dragged from the ice water by her 11-year-old son, Leverett, had tried to rescue her children. The father, called to the scene, also jumped into the icy water and was pulled to safety from under the ice by his brother, Lowell.

JAP DIPLOMAT ENDS LIFE WITH PISTOL

TOKIO, Nov. 29.—Sadao Suburi, Japanese chargé d'affaires at Washington, committed suicide today by shooting himself in his room in the Fujiya Hotel at Miyano-shita.

A chambermaid in the mountain resort hotel about forty miles south of Tokio, heard the shot and found the diplomat lying on the floor with a bullet wound in his head. He died shortly afterward. Grief over the death of his wife just three years ago today was believed to have caused him to take his life. He constantly grieved for her.

MONEY IS GONE

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 29.—Thomas Garcia, Mansfield, O., reported to police here today that upon arising this morning he had "lost" $2,500 and two "business acquaintances."

On the advice of the "friends," Garcia said he had withdrawn $2,500 from a Mansfield bank and come to Cleveland with them. They took a room in a downtown Cleveland hotel. This morning the men and the money were among the missing.

ACCIDENTALLY KILLED

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—Leo Atwell, 16, was dead today from the accidental discharge of his own shotgun. Hunting in nearby Virginia yesterday, he placed his gun momentarily against a tree. It fell, the jar to the ground released its charge of shot. He died instantly.

Rosalie March, seventeen, works at the hosiery counter of a department store, a position she secured through the kindness of Kenessa Oubarry, an actress, who took pity on her when Rosalie's mother dies. Rosalie is adored by her landlady, Mother Murphy, and little Tim O'Hara, the corner newsie. Alberto Martino, the store detective, threatens Rosalie with arrest when he catches her with a pair of silk stockings she has taken until payday. He prevails upon her to hide some suitcases in her room. Roy Clarke Andrews, nephew of the store owner, asks Rosalie to marry him. Martino's gang kidnaps Roy, and when Rosalie threatens to expose him, Martino is mysteriously shot. The police arrive.

Of course, Rosalie is accused of the murder, and is taken to the station to be questioned.

Rosalie does not know who shot Martino.

After questioning, Rosalie is put in charge of Aunt Bessie, at the women's bureau.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXV

The Philadelphia newspaper world was tony tummy with two of the biggest stories they had ever had at one time. The Roy Andrews disappearance—and the March Hate murder. They were all calling it that now. "The Hate Murder."

Sob sisters were running riot, slinking luk pots full of tears for the benefit of a greedy public.

Reporter dispatched to Rendale came back with a verification of the fact that three months before Rosalie was an innocent little high school girl. There were stories of her mother's death, their poverty—and how, aided by an actress, she had gone to Philadelphia to find work.

It was hot copy. There MUST be a man back of it somewhere. Where had she got the gun? An innocent, little, seventeen-year-old girl, who had never seen a gun in her whole life before. IT MUST be a love motive. And anyone who has ever been near a newspaper office knows that a love motive is to a city editor what a red rag is to a bull.

He sees red headlines screaming all the way across his paper—like blood.

Such an editor was John Earle Shannon of the Philadelphia Tribune. Of the new school, he believed in giving the public what they wanted. That's what he was getting paid for.

"Dow! Rowdy Dow!"

"His master's voice," Rowdy cupped an ear with his hand, got up lazily from his desk, and stretched. "Call me?"

"Yes, shiftless—YOU!"

Rowdy, with maddening leisure, strolled over and sat down on the waste paper basket beside the city desk. He had been christened Keith Dow. And whoever first thought of the "Rowdy" gave him a handle that fitted perfectly. He was exactly that. A "rowdy dow" boy—here today, and gone today. Shannon grinned at him good naturedly. Sometimes he would have liked to knock his block off. Other times he loved him like a brother. And no one would deny that he was one of the best and one of the worst newspaper men in the United States. How to keep him in one spot long enough to get any good out of him was a question that had driven more than one city editor out for a good-sized drink.

"Rowdy," Shannon leaned over confidentially, as if he were about to offer a large raise in salary. "I'm going to put you on the Hate Murder."

Rowdy looked his disgust. "You WOULD. Ain't I had enough molls with itchy trigger fingers to deal with in my life without you throwin' one right in my face over 'day'?"

"Oh, but this is different," Shannon grinned, and picked up the paper. "Look at that figure. Look at them eyes."

"So's poison ivy pretty," Rowdy threw the picture down indifferent-ly.

"Well, I want you to go out and sex appeal a real story out of that damsel—and don't come back till you get it."

That was an order that interest- ed Rowdy strangely.

"I don't have to come back till I get something real?"

"No."

"How much expense money do I get?"

Shannon groaned. Rowdy leaned over seriously.

"No foolin', boss. I got an idea that's been runnin' around in my head about that story ever since it broke. Give me all the time and money I want and I'll crack it for you."

"Yeah—you'll go off on a bat and get some of these other yaps to cover you, that's what you'll do."

Rowdy tried to look hurt.

"Why, boss! How can you say such a thing?"

Then he grinned. When Rowdy Dow grinned the battle was lost.

"All right," Shannon acquiesced. "But, what have you got up your sleeve?"

"Gawd, you guys are a bunch of nitwits," Rowdy leaned over confidentially. "Haven't you ever thought that the disappearance of young Roy Andrews might have had something to do with that girl from the same store shooting the house dick?"

Shannon's eyes popped with astonishment.

"I did," Rowdy grinned. "It never entered my mind until this very minute."

"Well—it's a darn fool idea—and I suppose it'll cost me a fortune and never amount to a row of potato bugs. But, get out. How much do you want?"

Rowdy studied a minute, and named an amount that would have turned a gold digger green with envy.

"I'll turn back every cent I don't use," he grinned, and shuffled off to the cashier to have the expense account cashed.

"You're a liar," the city editor called after him.

He turned around and blew a kiss at the city desk.

"Nuts!"

Of course, Rowdy told himself a few minutes later, over a glass of beer, that was only a lot of bunk. The disappearance of Roy Clarke Andrews the same week one of the little dames from the stocking counter took a plug at the store detective was just a coincidence. Something would have leaked out before this.

But, he liked to play with the idea. It would be a whale of a yarn interview from the March girl that would hook up the two. It was as easy getting in to see Mussolini as to get into the Moyansing prison to interview a woman held for murder. But an hour later Rowdy had succeeded in pulling wires so that he had been granted permission. Nearly every police official in Philadelphia swore by and at Rowdy Dow. He had a nice little way of riding them through the headlines if they didn't do exactly what he wanted them to.

The next day he was just as likely to make up for it by giving them credit for doing one of the most heroic and altogether manly deeds they had ever dreamed of. His motto with them had always been: "You play ball with me and I'll play ball with you."

When Rosalie was told a reporter was coming in to interview her she sat up on her cot and mechanically pushed back the hair from her pale face.

There was nothing to do but wait and wait and wait. Days and days of waiting for the grand jury. One day seemed just like another. Iron bars, distasteful food, solitude, memories.

"GEORGIE is absolutely the picture of health again," says Mrs. G. L. Rogers, 8212 Decker Ave., Cleveland, Ohio. "A few weeks ago we had to force him to eat; now he's always hungry."

"I knew what to do when he became bilious, half-sick and listless, because we've always known about California Fig Syrup. Georgie's coated tongue and bad breath cleared up with the first few spoonfuls; and in just a few days his stomach and bowels were acting perfectly. He weighs 53 pounds now and is gaining right along."

California Fig Syrup has the full endorsement of the medical world. A pure vegetable product, loved by children. A gentle, but thorough cleanser of a youngster's system and agent-energizer for sluggish bowels. A stimulator for lagging appetites and digestions; a help in building sturdy limbs and robust bodies.

COMMUNITY CHE ST FUND STILL SHORT $1,500 WORKERS REPORT

Xenia's 1929 Community Fund is still short $1,500.

An appeal issued by fund workers Thursday for voluntary contributions and for previous subscribers to increase their donations if possible, apparently fell on deaf ears because Thanksgiving Day was not what the name implies as far as the chest was concerned.

Fund leaders reiterated Friday the announcement that contributions in order to help reduce the deficit will be welcomed until next Tuesday although the actual campaign of solicitation ended Wednesday and a second appeal is being issued for citizens to give generously.

It is believed that the cold weather of the last few days will be a help to the fund. Workers hope that it will bring many people to a realization of the need of the kind of charitable work which the community fund makes possible.

It may be particularly helpful in obtaining additional subscriptions from those who have already given liberally, but who are willing to dig a bit deeper in their pockets in order to make sure that the welfare agencies participating in the drive will not suffer from lack of funds next year.

ROAD BUILDING

Impelled by forces now getting behind public work of every character, and especially under the leadership of President Hoover, plans are in the making for increased activity in road building as one of the most far-reaching and constructive agencies in national progress.

In preparation for this objective, and for the consideration of other matters concerning highway improvement, members of the American Association of State Highway Officials have just held their regular annual meeting at San Antonio, Texas. This body is composed exclusively of highway officials who represent every state in the union and who also co-operate closely with the Federal government in the administration of Federal Aid. At this meeting, legislative and financial needs in highway work for the immediate future were discussed and a resolution was passed recommending to Congress that the Federal Aid appropriations be increased to $125,000,000.

In carrying on their part of the nation's work, highway officials are stressing the importance of completing the main Federal Aid project as originally planned. This plan, it will be recalled, was to complete state and interstate routes first in order to save motor vehicle revenues from the drain of excessive repair costs where roads are not built sufficiently strong in the first instance to sustain frequent and heavy traffic.

As to the wisdom of proceeding with increased activity on the original program, those in highway leadership assert that they are in line with President Hoover's engineering views on such matters. These views were expressed in one of his pre-election speeches at St. Louis and again on his recent visit to Cincinnati and Louisville in connection with waterway improvement. Tersely stated, it was the president's expressed judgment that trunk line waterways should be improved first, and highway officials in their recent conferences at San Antonio have again attested to the soundness of that principle as a means of conserving and making the safest possible use of highway construction capital.

Taking the country as a whole, the use of public highways is increasing at an amazing rate, likewise motor vehicle operating waste is increasing where highways have not yet been brought up to modern standards in construction. This situation may be taken as a lesson that not only should there be no let-up in road building, especially on routes that are heavily traveled, but that public work of this character should be intensified. It may be taken also as a reminder that there should be no evasion of the obligation due to motorists who have acquiesced in gasoline tax levies in the various states upon the assurance that the main traffic channels of the country would be pressed to completion as early as possible and thus take care of between 75 and 85 per cent of the country's traffic before attempting to stretch the Federal Aid principle beyond its present scope.

With the initiative which President Hoover is taking in all internal improvement matters, it is expected that highway building soon will be greatly increased and thereafter maintained at a speed that will insure not only sustained employment in that particular field, but great profit to the country.

Bo-Broadway

By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

Raymond Duncan, brother of the late lamented Isadora, is sorry he broke a 20-year exile in Paris to take a final squint at New York. He thinks he'd have been happier if he'd gone on cherishing old dreams.

Ray is what is known as an eccentric person. It's all right to be eccentric in New York, provided you're not too eccentric. Just enough, and then quit.

Ray is 60 inches tall and slim as an outspoken clergyman's bank account. His long, black, greying hair is held back from his Indian profile by a strand of gold cord. Scoring trousers and other conventional clothes, he parades around in a toga, sandals and goose pimples.

Over in Paris he maintains open house for artists and thinkers. He came back to New York expecting to be welcomed with wide open arms by the intelligentsia, the arty ones. But even Society, which usually drags to its plant blossom European personages of all sorts and description, has given Raymond Duncan absent treatment.

"Here I am lost," he says. "I have met nobody—no one at all. I keep open house, tea every afternoon, and no one calls. I want to talk with your great artist. Who is he? You have none. Your great poet? None. Your greatest writer? No."

A reporter visited Ray. "Have you no one," pleaded Isadora's brother, "to whom strangers here may turn?"

"No one," said the reporter, "but Grover Whalen."

GAMBLER'S BEADS

New necklaces of dice have made their appearance on Park avenue. They're called "gambler's beads." The dice are authentically marked. Some of them show figures similar to Continental poker dice. And the necklaces are so constructed that when occasion demands the "bones" may be detached and devoted to utilitarian purposes.

IT TAKES INTELLIGENCE

Police men able to "answer all inquiries" intelligently have been especially posted in the midtown section for the holidays, to assist visitors.

Courtesy Patrolman Newman at Fifth avenue and 25th street has been on duty less than half an hour on his first day's assignment when a woman approached to ask whether he knew where the Equitable building is situated.

Newman told her. Then she said: "I wonder if you could tell me whether or not Mr. Weaver has an office there?"

THE WAY of the WORLD

TUNING UP

Sitting near the orchestra at Fritz Scheff's show (yes, I paid for my seat) I heard a young woman say to her partner, "But why must the orchestra always tune up its instruments every time it comes in? Even if the players have merely been out for a few minutes, they will go through all that noise and trouble again when they return. Surely, the instruments cannot have got very badly out of tune during those few minutes."

Well, I know nothing of such things. But the young woman's observation set me thinking.

It is rather annoying to hear an orchestra tuning up, especially if you chance to be close, and if the cellist scrapes his bow over the strings slowly and torturingly.

When I was a boy there was a musical family on a neighboring farm. Musical, but not very. It was a very large family, and ten of the children played banjos, guitars, fiddles, mandolins, harmonicas and other excitable instruments. The ten of them used to play at last day of school entertainments, and the only consolation I had was that anyway it was the last day.

The family orchestra used to play at parties, too, and often used to drop in on the neighbors for a friendly and sociable evening.

Most of the time was spent in tuning up. I suppose some of the tuning was necessary, but the result couldn't have been any more inharmonious if the players had gone right ahead playing without tuning.

So many people I have known have spent most of their time tuning up. I know a man whose hair is snowy white. He has nothing in the world to do but take in money that flows to him from the estate his industrious father left him. He has as good an education as it's possible to get with money and brains. He is unusually intelligent, and knows what's going on, all over the world. But he's still tuning up for the writing of a book he started to plan when he was twenty.

You know salesmen who are forever tuning up for a great bit of selling, and lazy-minded persons who have been for many years tuning up for a big reading program. I know a man who has been tuning up to learn Spanish for the last ten years, and he hasn't even learned to say chili con carne yet.

Real music is desirable, but tuning up shouldn't occupy too much time.

Taking of Federal Census Described as Vast Undertaking

By William M. Stewart
Director of the Census

(William Matt Stewart was born at Corpus Christi, Tex., Oct. 2, 1861. He is a graduate of Columbian (now George Washington) university. Admitted to the bar in 1894, he practiced law in the District of Columbia, Maryland and Detroit. In 1899 he became connected with the census of manufactures, becoming chief of the division in 1900, then chief statistician of manufactures, bureau of census, from 1902 to 1917. Assistant director of the census in 1919, he has been director since 1921. He is a Republican.)

Statistics covering population, agriculture, manufactures, employment and distribution, will be included in the coming decennial census, which will be a vast undertaking. It will be necessary to enumerate and to collect data for a population of more than 120,000,000, recording 25 or 30 items as to age, nativity, occupation, etc., of each individual; for more than 6,000,000 farms, gathering details as to acreage, value of farms, livestock, etc., for about 200,000 manufacturing establishments, with information as to the number of employees, value and quantity of products, horsepower, material used, etc., for about 20,000 mining enterprises, for approximately 2,500,000 establishments engaged in trade. The next census will include close to 20,000 questions or items of information regarding individuals, farms and manufacturing, commercial and other enterprises. At the beginning of April next it will be necessary to have available 40,000,000 printed copies of various schedules of inquiries.

In addition to censuses of population, farms and manufacturing on periodical inquiries involving output, the bureau of census carries compilation and tabulation of data in regard to births, deaths, marriages, divorces, prisoners, financial transactions of states and cities, cotton ginning and current production of numerous commodities. Approximately 99,000,000 cards were tabulated during the fiscal year 1929, the great bulk of which consisted of tabulations of births and deaths.

DISEASE ISN'T THE ONLY THING THAT'S CONTAGIOUS

How To Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

THERE was a time when traveling was an ordeal, even when done in luxurious fashion. More recently, however, manufacturers have been paying a great deal of attention to the details which make for comfort and pleasure enroute, and one can obtain the most charming travel accessories.

If you happen to number among your friends women who travel on business or for pleasure, or women who enjoy an occasional week-end in the country or a visit to another city, then the ideal manner in which to bring Christmas cheer is with some useful and beautiful traveling accessory.

Even the most careful, fastidious women find it difficult to keep themselves fresh looking on trains because of soot and dust. This is true even if the trip happens to be by motor car. The only way to meet this problem is to carry beauty preparations with you.

There is a perfectly charming journey kit prepared by one of the beauty specialists who travels herself all the time, which contains a generous supply of all kinds of beauty preparations, a thorough cleansing cream, a good stimulant, a rich nourishing cream and special preparations for the eyes, hands and throat. There is even room for a nightgown and a toothbrush, when the journey is short and no other luggage is carried.

It is always quite a nuisance when packing to find just the right place for jars of cream, skin-toning lotion and make-up essentials. Since travel boxes and journey kits contain everything, such a gift is practical as well as beautiful, and men too, like to have these to carry with them.

A compact manure set is a serviceable and acceptable gift, even for those who confine their traveling to a day or two in the country.

Of course, sometimes women prefer gifts which are only beautiful—their usefulness—receiving only secondary consideration—but every woman will concede that the ideal Christmas gift combines loveliness with utility.

Behind the Scenes In Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—New Yorkers think their burg has a monopoly on the bizarre and impossible.

That simply is because Manhattan chroniclers cackle so over every trifling event in their midst, assuming that it must be vitally important because it occurs on their picaresque little island.

In reality, more extraordinary things probably happen in and around Washington than anywhere else in the country. Or, if they do not actually happen here, our distinguished visitors bring the first news of them in to the capital. Only here we have a lot of genuinely consequential matters to occupy our minds with.

But if we cared to be frivolous—

For instance:
Last year the District of Columbia's next door neighbor, Virginia, jumped out of the Democratic and into the Republican column on account of religion—whatever that may have to do with national politics.

But this year the Old Dominion state jumped back again and one of the determining issues was the inviting of Mrs. Oscar De Priest to tea at the White House.

A few nights ago Secretary of State Stimson entertained Dr. Juan B. Sacasa at dinner, which was quite proper, considering that Dr. Sacasa is Nicaragua's minister in Washington.

However, enemies of our form of government, like Bolsheviki, are not even allowed in this country.

And it isn't so long since U. S. marines and Nicaraguans were killing each other in the latter's native jungles because Dr. Sacasa, as a Bolsheviki, was in arms against us.

Another batch of evidence has arrived here in support of the denial that Tom Mooney and Warren Billings had a thing to do with the San Francisco bomb throwing for which they are serving life terms in San Quentin.

It may seem superfluous, considering that the judge and all the surviving jurors who tried them also deny it, but it arrived anyway.

And as usual, it arrived addressed to Senator Thomas D. Schall, of Minnesota, who, although he lives 2,000-and-odd miles from the scene of what about half the members of congress have called one of the rankiest injustices in American history, is trying harder to rectify it than Senators Johnson and Shattuck and Representatives Lea, Engelbright, Curry, Kahn, Welch, Carter, Barbour, Free, Evans, Crail and Swing of California, all put together.

After a dozen strikers from a big textile plant had been fired out of their church at Marion (N.C.) for joining a labor union, the entire 12 of them turned up there, some of their number crying real tears, begging the pastor (paid by their employers) to take them back again into communion.

This may be challenged as not a Washington event, but it came from A. F. of L. headquarters in the capital.

"And people wonder," said the A. F. of L.ite who told me, "why we have so much trouble getting those textile workers effectively organized!"

Socialists who come to Washington with government business to transact occasionally complain that there is not now a single member of congress whose views are radical enough to sympathize with them, to whom they can apply for assistance, as they used to do to the late Representative Berger.

Yet Representative Fiorello H. LaGuardia is just back, after suffering an exceptionally severe trouncing as Republican candidate for mayor of New York, due to the fact that 53 many conservative Republicans voted for Torman Thomas, the Socialist nominee, on the ground that LaGuardia was too red for them.

This menu is for six. Ordinary mayonnaise or cooked salad dressing may be used on the salad for luncheon if preferred.

Today's Recipes

Cabbage and Apple Salad—Select good, tart, eating apples, peel, cut into small cubes, and mix with finely chopped cabbage. You may use equal proportions of apple and cabbage, more apple, or more cabbage. The cream-salad dressing is made as follows: as one-beat half-pint of thick whipping cream until stiff; add four and one-half tablespoonsful of lemon juice, two tablespoonsful of horseradish, a grating of onion, a few drops of tabasco, and salt to taste. These seasonings can be changed according to individual preference, but be sure there is enough dressing in proportion to the cabbage and apple. Just a dash of cayenne pepper may be used if you do not have tabasco. If the horseradish is in vinegar, use only two tablespoons of lemon. Half a pint of cream makes enough dressing for about three cups of apples and cabbage, which will serve six people. Mix the cream dressing with the apples and cabbage. Serve on lettuce.

Chocolate Pudding—Two-thirds cup light brown sugar, one-third cup flour, two squares chocolate, melted, three cups milk, one-eighth teaspoon salt, two eggs, well beaten, one teaspoon butter, one teaspoon vanilla, one-third cup nuts (these can be omitted). Thoroughly blend the sugar and flour. Add the chocolate and milk and cook in double boiler until thick and creamy. Stir frequently. Add the eggs and butter and cook for three minutes. Add the rest of the ingredients. Cool and chill.

Suggestions

Buttered Bread Crumbs
Dry bread should be used for buttered bread crumbs, ground not too fine in a food chopper. To each cup of crumbs allow one tablespoon of butter. Melt the butter over a slow flame and stir in the crumbs, stirring constantly until the fat is well distributed through the crumbs.

Cheese MUSH
A little milk added to the water for making cornmeal mush is an improvement. After meal has been stirred in, add as much cheese as liked, cut up fine, and cook until done. This is good fried or eaten hot with butter.

FISH IS REASONABLY PRICED—HEALTHFUL
PLANKED WHITEFISH
(Mrs. Mary Morton's Daily Tested Recipe)—Whitefish, butter, salt and pepper, lemon, parsley. Clean and split the fish. Place it skin side down on a well-buttered plank. Sprinkle with salt and pepper and brush with melted butter. Bake in a hot oven for twenty-five minutes. Remove, spread with butter, garnish with butter, garnish with lemon and parsley, and send to the table on the plank.

Diet and Health

By LULU HUNT PETERS, M. D.

Author of "Diet and Health" and "Diet for Children"

Mr. B.—Dermographia sometimes, called dermatographism, is a symptom and not a disease. Therefore no one could say that a person had the disease dermatographia. As you can see from the derivation of the word—derma: skin; graphia: to write—it means writing on the skin.

The condition is manifested in no other disease than hives, so far as I know, although in some obscure nervous disease possibly caused by endocrine disturbances, a red mark may follow a slight scratch on the skin which ordinarily wouldn't leave a mark.

The word dermatographia is not used frequently because it is not a common condition. I did write about this in the column some time ago.

Hives, or urticaria, is a disease which is not thoroughly understood although it is very common. It is usually caused by certain foods. It is believed that the protein molecule of the foods is not digested correctly, and, absorbed in this unprepared state, irritates the blood vessels so that the serum escapes too rapidly, causing the weals and marks, when scratching is indulged in. This, in turn, also causes the irritation to the terminal nerves, causing the itching. Those who suffer in this manner are said to have an idiosyncrasy to the food (also called an allergy). This idiosyncrasy may sometimes be caused by old ulcer scars in the stomach or intestine and gall bladder or appendix disturbances.

The protein skin tests that I have spoken of are given to see if the offending protein can be found. It is true, as you have experienced, that sometimes these tests do not disclose the offending protein, perhaps because an insufficient number had been given; or it may be that they might not disclose it because it was an excess of a protein taken rather than the protein per se, that caused the trouble.

Aren't you a little harsh, Mr. B. in saying that I am intimidating a woman because I tell her that from her symptoms I judge she may have hives which may be due to a food sensitization? Naturally, I cannot make a diagnosis; I simply judge from the letter, and I write on these in the column if they happen to be subjects of general interest—always, of course, advising the writers that they must see their physician for diagnosis and treatment. I assure you that my sole object is to be helpful, and all of my time is devoted to this work. I am not doing any private practice, although I am a licensed physician and could practice—and could have an enormous practice, by the way—because I do give all my time to study and to keeping up with my profession for this one work of public health education.

We have an article on Hives which you may have by following column rules.

"Dear Doctor: I have a terrible itching in the back of my throat. Some days my nose itches also. I sneeze now and then, but mostly when I get up in the morning. No discharge of any kind from my nose or throat. I have had this annoying itching for the last six months. I also have terrible headaches. R."

Consult a nose and throat specialist, R. There may be some little local inflammation or scar tissue that is causing your nerves to be irritated. You should also have a complete physical examination, including that of your eyes, to discover the cause of the headaches. A headache is a symptom of something wrong somewhere, not necessarily in the head.

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I am 17 years old, and ever since I was 11 I have been going with a boy that is only one day older than I am. I really loved this boy and he said he loved me. We vowed we would be true to each other as long as we lived.

"I had been going to school and only had one year more to go in high school, but I went the way of many girls, Virginia. I loved 'not wisely, but too well,' and the result is that I am working and trying to take care of my four-months-old baby.

"The boy is going to school. He promised to marry me long before my baby came, but he hasn't done so yet. He has given me money to buy things for the baby, but he never comes to see me. He says he wants to finish school so as to get a better job. Don't you think if he really cared he would come to see us sometimes? Would you put any faith in his promise to marry me?"

"I have met a very nice boy who says and acts as if he loves me. But Virginia, I don't LOVE him. I love the other one, although he isn't so good to me.

"Shall I marry the one who is nice to me, or wait for the one I love? Please advise me, for I am sadly in need of advice. I have no mother to turn to. SAD, LONELY ME."

I'm afraid very little faith is to be put in the boy's promises to marry. Has he parents living? They should be consulted about the baby, and should help support it, as he is a minor.

Going through a legal ceremony with him would legalize the baby, and perhaps that would be best, and you may be able to go through with it if his parents will help you. They should also help him to finish school as it is true that he will be able to earn more money if he has an education.

Don't marry the other boy—at least not yet—loving the first. If you cannot marry your baby's father, try to take care of him for awhile by yourself. Possibly you will forget the first boy and grow to care for someone else who will make a good home for you and the baby.

MRS. W.: Thank you so much for your very kind letter. Best of wishes for you and your fine family.

Peter's Adventures

By MRS. FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

PETER STEPS RIGHT INTO TROUBLE

Peter glancing at Holy Man of Beetle Land, thought that he looked decidedly ugly for holy man, and privately decided that he wasn't really praying at all, but was holding his claws in that position because he wanted to. But then the boy thought of what Biffer had told him, and concluded to keep his opinions to himself. He looked back after they had gone some distance and saw that Holy Man was still standing in the same position that they had first seen him.

Biffer was too excited to walk sedately and kept running ahead of Peter and then back again to tell the boy something that he had seen. But the path was a winding one and at last Biffer turned around a corner and was lost entirely to view. The boy hurried after him and overtook him before long, but thought for a moment that the beetle had gone mad. Biffer was jumping up and down and clapping his claws and chanting something that sounds like, "Ya, ya, ya; he, he, he; hy, hy, hy."

When he saw Peter he beckoned him on to.

Just as Peter reached the little beetle he felt a sharp pain in his foot, and then suddenly it seemed as if something had hold of him and was trying to pull him into the ground. He clutched a clump of grass that grew high above his head and hung on with all his might while he screamed for aid.

"Help me, Biffer, quickly. I'm afraid I am going to lose my foot. Something is dragging me into a hole and I don't know what it is."

Biffer rushed up at his cry and knew in an instant what had happened.

"Hey there, Tiger, leave go of that foot," he cried bending down and shouting into what Peter saw plainly for the first time was a hole in the ground. "I am Biffer the Gun-Beetle, and you have trapped a friend of mine. If you don't let him go I will smother you with a gas attack."

Whatever it was who had grabbed the boy evidently knew that Biffer would make good his threat if he let go of him so quickly that he was taken off his guard and fell head over heels into the soft ooze around him. That he had been hanging on to.

CENTRAL WINDS UP DISASTROUS YEAR; SPRINGFIELD WINS 41 TO 9

Wildcats Run Wild Against Forlorn Blue And White Team Which Contributed Ninth Defeat To Xenia In Ten Game Schedule

By PHIL FRAME
SPRINGFIELD HIGH SCHOOL put the finishing touch on the most disappointing football season experienced by Xenia Central High since 1924 when the Wildcats clawed their way to a 41 to 9 victory over the Bucs on a half-frozen gridiron at Wittenberg College stadium in the annual Thanksgiving Day classic between the rival schools Thursday morning.

Springfield simply summoned too much power for the Bucs. Crossing the frost-bitten Xenia goal line in every quarter, the Wildcats never looked like losers. Among the 500 shivering fans who watched the one-sided struggle a few of the Xenia faithful whose hopes had been buoyed up by the improved showing of the Bucs the week before, went home with splitting headaches.

The defeat forged the ninth link in Xenia's chain of consecutive defeats and officially terminated a season which was productive of only one victory, a 7 to 0 triumph over the O. S. and S. O. Home in the season's inaugural game.

Thanks to Joe Smittle, who ended his high school gridiron career in a blaze of glory, the Bucs were able to cross the Wildcat goal line once and also add two points on a safety.

Joe was a whole team himself and played an outstanding role in the Buccaneer offense and defense.

"Modern football is no May Day party. There are a few teams with enough reserve strength to play six or seven hard games. But there are few of these. Others try to play through such a season, only to find their teams broken and stale, with the nerve systems exhausted. This helps to account for so many of the so-called upsets. For this reason a team may be two or three touchdowns weaker one Saturday than it was the Saturday before.

"Such a contest as the Army-Navy battle cannot be forced upon two football teams where hard schedules have already been arranged. It would be more than the players could face without suffering serious effects.

"This is one detail no politician has yet considered. If left to many of them, they would have both teams playing hard games all over the country from early October into Christmas week.

"The next orator who arises to suggest that the Army and Navy be forced into action next fall might wait just a minute or two and consider a factor that has been given little consideration—the young man out there on the field taking the punishment."

Calling the famous report of the Carnegie Foundation, Dr. Tully Kates, president of the College of the Pacific at Stockton, Calif., recently declared in an address that "America needs football because it strengthens the national backbone."

"Football," he said, "teaches a valuable lesson 'hold on to the ball.' Rugby failed, he added, because it taught a lesson already known—'get rid of the ball or in other words 'pass the buck.'"

Packed stadia do not frighten him where the main interest is academic and not athletic.

Dr. Kates declared the Carnegie bulletin was not published until after the West had established itself as the football leader of the country.

"As the oldest living quarterback from the University of Southern California I have nothing but four stars to show for four years of effort on a Trojan gridiron—let the Carnegie Foundation make the most of it."

Howard Ehmke, lean and lanky right-handed pitcher for the Philadelphia Athletics, who surprised the baseball world by his remarkable performance against the Chicago Cubs in the first game of the last world series, has reconsidered a previous intimation that he might retire from baseball and admits that he will again be with the world champions next year. The towering pitcher plans, however, to devote considerable time to the coaching of young pitchers but will be prepared to take a turn in the box whenever called upon.

Michigan has its Brown Jug back, Purdue its Old Oaken Bucket and a lot of other alumni have headaches.

After winning the jug from Minnesota this season the Michigan boys looked into it and found it empty. So it was a hollow victory.

Cable from England says the Ordham Athletics are leading a major British soccer league, which explains what has become of Connie Mack.

University of Mexico's football coach, Reggie Root, returns to United States. Maybe he was afraid they would run him for president.

This fellow Devens of Harvard may be a whale of a baseball pitcher some day, they say, but what Yale would like to forget is that he isn't a bad footballer, either.

ACCOUNTANT FOUND DEAD IN CISTERN
GALION, O., Nov. 29.—John T. Stark, 40, an accountant, was found dead at the bottom of a cistern at 3 o'clock this morning by local police, who had been summoned by the man's wife who became alarmed when she missed him from his bed.

Stark was attired in a night gown and slippers when he was found. He may have walked in his sleep.

ALLEGED SLAYER IS HELD IN DETROIT
CHARLESTON, W. Va., Nov. 29.—Logan County authorities are here today seeking extradition papers from Governor Conley, for the return of Peter Kinder, who is now in custody in Detroit, and who is wanted for the alleged murder of Joe Gore, a mine guard, at Blair, W. Va., in 1921.

Kinder was arrested on complaint of his son-in-law, Elliot Pauley, who told Detroit police that his father-in-law had threatened to kill him.

The man denied the son-in-law's charges, but admitted to police, they say, that he had killed the mine guard.

Kinder was living at River Rouge, a Detroit suburb, under the assumed name of John A. Atkins.

CAPTURES VICTORY OVER MOUNTAINEERS AT COLUMBUS 14-0

West Virginia State Loses Thanksgiving Day Battle

BEFORE a crowd of 7,000 shivering fans Wilberforce University brought its 1929 football season to a triumphant close with a sensational 14 to 0 victory over the hitherto unbeaten West Virginia State College eleven in their annual Thanksgiving Day classic, flavored by the traditional rivalry between the two schools, at Neil Park, Columbus.

It was the seventeenth annual meeting between the two teams and Wilberforce, with an eleven which ranks with the best in the school's history, forward passed its way to a notable victory against a team which prior to Thursday was unbeaten and untied within colored collegiate football ranks this season.

West Virginia also held a victory over Bluefield Institute, last season's national champions, marking Bluefield's first defeat in three years of competition.

A tie at the hands of Bluefield and a 7 to 0 defeat administered by Tuskegee Institute deprived Wilberforce of the mythical colored football championship of the country this season but the spectacular victory over West Virginia Thursday gave the Blue and Gold gridders the mid-west football crown.

Outlasting the highly-touted State eleven in every department of play, Wilberforce, with a backfield that executed intricate plays to perfection and an aerial game which was an important factor in the scoring of its touchdowns in the second and third periods, looked like winners from the start.

The play was almost entirely in State's territory.

The first Wilberforce marker came in the second quarter climaxing a fifty-yard march when Tynes carried the ball over and Moore place-kicked the extra point.

In the third period Moore, dashing back to a point fifteen yards behind his own forward wall, tossed a long pass into the arms of Fowler, fleet end, who caught the ball on the run. The pass traveled fifty yards in the air over the heads of the State secondary defense and Fowler reeled off the remaining yardage to the goal line without interference. Moore's toe accounted once more for the added point.

Statistics will have you believe that Wilberforce registered eleven first downs to two for State, a convincing indication of the superiority of the Bulldogs. Wilberforce gained 281 yards by rushing the ball to six yards for State, completed six out of fifteen passes for a total of 125 yards, while State's ten passes were either incomplete or intercepted.

Outstanding for Wilberforce was the play of Moore and Tynes in the backfield. Moore proved a real triple-threat player, kicking, passing and running with the ball. Tynes, Wilberforce's candidate for All-American this season, thrust off tackles and around the ends for substantial gains and could not be stopped. He ripped State's line to shreds.

It is a remarkable fact that against the Wilberforce line, which is equal to the best in the country, the strong State eleven was able to gain only six yards.

Snow flurries with near-zero temperatures failed to dampen the ardor of the many fans who stayed to the end. Summary:

PIQUA WINS MIA MI VALLEY LOOP TITLE DEFEATING TROY 21 TO 6

N A battle for survival between the two unbeaten and untied teams within the ranks of the Miami Valley League, Piqua High School won the 1929 league football title by trouncing Troy High, 21 to 6 before 5,000 thrilled fans on the Trojan gridiron Thanksgiving afternoon.

Ability to take advantage of so-called breaks in their favor enabled Piqua to score two touchdowns in the second quarter after a scoreless first period.

A punt blocked by Ramsey, Piqua center, early in the second period gave Piqua the ball on Troy's twenty-five. The marker came on two plays, one a drive by Captain Cron through the line followed by a sweeping end run by Croner. Neth drop-kicked the extra point.

Later in the quarter Piqua punted the ball being downed on Troy's two-yard line by a Piqua player. The referee ruled the bounding ball had touched Osley, Troy safety man and Piqua was given the ball. On a drive through the line Neth accounted for the second touchdown and again drop-kicked the point after.

The third Piqua touchdown came in the fourth period and ended a sustained drive down the field over Captain Cron carrying the ball over the goal line. For the third time Neth's toe added the point.

Troy's touchdown in the third quarter came on the longest run of the game when Hoover, halfback, caught a punt on his own forty-five yard and added by fine interference ran fifty-five yards for a score.

The large crowd which witnessed the championship game was thrilled time and again by the dazzling open field running of Captain Cron. For Troy, R. Scott played a wonderful game at tackle, breaking through to smear many plays despite the fact his opponent on the line heavily outwitted him.

Prior to their title tilt Thursday neither team had been beaten or tied in four league games. The victory gave Piqua revenge for the surprise defeat administered by Troy in their Turkey Day battle last season. Lineups:

JIMMY PHELAN

Jimmy Phelan, coach of Purdue's Big Ten championship team, came to the Hoosier school eight years ago. Basketball was the big sport or the Bollermakers then. They wanted to amount to something in a football way, too, and Jimmy loved to put them out in front if even a little time.

In 1922, Phelan's first year at Purdue, his team won only one game while losing five and tying one. The following year the record was two games won, five lost and one tied. In 1924 they made a record of five games won and two lost. Three games were won, four lost and one tied in 1925. In 1926, games won, two lost and one tied. The next year they won six games while losing two. Last year he eleven won five times, lost twice and was tied once.

Stark was attired in a night gown and slippers when he was found. He may have walked in his sleep.

FOR THANKSGIVING DAY UNION PROGRAM

The annual Thanksgiving services were held at the Zion Baptist Church, Thursday morning at 11 o'clock with a large number of representatives with their pastors from the following churches: First A. M. E., the Rev. S. A. Amos, pastor; Third Baptist, the Rev. A. M. Howe, pastor; St. John's A. M. E. Church, the Rev. A. R. Fox, pastor; Main St. Christian Church, the Rev. O. H. McGowan, pastor; Middletown Church, pastor out of city.

The Rev. S. A. Amos, secretary of the Ministers Alliance, was master of ceremonies. The opening hymn was by the Main St. Christian Church choir; scripture lesson, the Rev. A. M. Howe; hymn, choir, prayer, the Rev. A. R. Fox; the speaker of the hour, the Rev. O. H. McGowan, pastor of the Main St. Christian Church.

The thought that the speaker based his remarks from was taken from first Thess., fifth chapter and eighteenth verse: "In everything give thanks for this is the will of God in Christ Jesus concerning you."

He said we are not expected to give thanks for everything. The text read "In everything give thanks." "One must have a broad vision that sees beyond the limits of our own blessings. We should be thankful that we live in a land of Bibles—when we think of the land where the Bible is not known. The word 'thanks' is one of the biggest words in the English language. It touches almost every faculty in man. David asks 'What shall I render unto God for all His benefits?' and decided 'I will offer the sacrifice of thanksgiving. It is a good thing to give thanks unto the Lord for it will fit us for Heaven. Here is the training school. Thanksgiving Day is the most characteristic of our national holidays and the most predominantly religious of all our national celebrations. The day has retained to a marked degree its original lustre. It is a long march from that bleak December of 1621 to 1929. The soft music of that day has been increasing with the years until today it is the organ note of Hallelujah choruses. We have not time to linger by the milestones but name them and let them speak for themselves. Let us thank God for the church and the vision of its leaders and especially the progress it has made on this North American continent. May it help to answer the prayer Christ prayed in that He said that we all may be one as He and the Father were one. Let us thank God for our salvation, for a home here and the promise of a home over there when this life is over."

Mr. and Mrs. James Harris, E. Second St., in company with Mrs. James Roberts attended the funeral service of Mr. Harvey Moore, at Springfield, Wednesday.

Mrs. Ella Ewing, 1127 E. Second St., passed away at her home Wednesday evening at about 10 o'clock. She had been ill about six months, suffering from dropsy. TO RELEASE RIGHTS

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 2.—Oil and gas rights on a section of the Roseville state brick plant, Roseville, will be released soon, by the state department of public welfare, according to an announcement by Hal H. Griswold, director of the department.

The section to be released is not being used in the prison brick making industry. It was explained.

Although not a professional explorer, Robert T. Moore, zoology professor at the California Institute of Technology, holds the distinction of being the first man to attain the summit of Mt. Sangay, 17,500-foot volcano, in Ecuador. A whole month of climbing was required for Professor Moore to reach the top. His wife accompanied him as high as 17,000 feet. Later he ascended Mt. Chimborazo, 20,600 feet, which has been climbed once, in 1880. Above Professor and Mrs. Moore snapped upon their return to Los Angeles.

A RADIO SERMON NOT SUFFICIENT

Dr. Charles R. Brown, former dean of Yale Divinity school, says, "The difference between listening to a radio sermon and going to church is the same as the difference between calling a girl on the telephone and spending the evening with her."

"The Bible does not say that God so loved the world that he telephoned down the good news. He sent his only begotten son to die." Why not accept the invitation and COME TO CHURCH NEXT SUNDAY?—D. Carl Yoder.

CHARACTER THE ONLY CURE FOR CRIME

Judge Leon McCord who for twelve years has been committing men and women to penal institutions insists that the only cure is that of changing the character of the individuals going wrong. He says, "Character is not inherited; it does not come by descent or distribution. It is the result of training, of education, of habit, of environment. In all cases, and under every sun, character is the fruit of personal exertion and personal endeavor."
"If you read good, clean books, if you keep good company, in a little while you will learn to love both. Then it is that you begin to build for yourself a character, without which you need not expect to succeed. Put a pin in this: If you lack character, then you have nothing the world needs or wants. You may have good looks, you may have a good father, who stands high in the community, and you may have prestige, so did Absalom. You propose to make your way by fooling the world; so did Absalom. You are going to be so cunning that you will not be found out. Absalom tried this. You are going to be a good fellow and slap men on the back, and shirk work, and live by your wits. Absalom tried this also. Yes you may lose friends and fortune, lose your way and breast the streams of life in threadbare garb, but if character bears you company, certain it is that she will lead you again to the highway of happiness and peace."

Creamed Comments On S.S. Lesson

This discourse was delivered on Tuesday preceding Christ's crucifixion. Because of Jesus' entry, the hatred of his religious enemies became intense; but his teachings lost none of its sharpness and pungency because of hostility; he spoke the truth that was needed then and now at the cost of death.
V. 31. "But when the Son of man shall come in his glory, and all the holy angels with him, then shall he sit on the throne of his glory. The Saviour will be judge at the last day, speaking with authority with all heaven as his witness."
V. 32. "And before him shall be gathered all nations; and he shall separate them one from another, as the shepherd separates the sheep from the goats. The 'all nations' means all people of all time; separation from God and from those counted dear in this world ought to help us live soberly and righteously in this life."
V. 33, 34, 35, 36. "Then shall the King say unto them on his right hand, come ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundations of the world; for I was hungry and ye gave me to eat; I was thirsty and ye gave me drink; I was a stranger and ye took me in. . . . Those who have accepted the invitation 'Come' on earth will hear it again at the judgment day. When one has lived his best he does not merit what is promised in the world to come, hence the use of the word inherit. The pronouncement of divine acceptance is based on the unconscious doing of deeds for others as a natural expression of the soul, as indicated in the next three verses.
Jesus knew what it was to be hungry, thirsty, lonely and in need of clothing, heart-sick, treated as a prisoner. The spirit of Christ in a man helps him to sense quickly all needs of others and to supply them to the extent of his ability and forgetting that he did any good thing.
V. 40. "And the King shall answer and say unto them, verily I say unto you, inasmuch as ye did it unto one of these my brethren, even these least, ye did it unto me." We fail to see things as they are; we forget that in some mysterious way Christ identifies himself with every true child of his

so that we are unconsciously serving him when we serve those he loves, even though they be of another color, race or creed.
Vs. 41, 42, 43. "Then shall he say unto them on the left hand, depart from me, ye cursed, into the eternal fire which is prepared for the devil and his angels; for I was hungry and yet did not give me to eat. . . . It will be one's record that the judge will present so that really the wrongdoer will be called to accept the result of his own doings. Note that these denounced may be those not counted bad folks in the world, not guilty of crimes under our form of government but guilty of failure to perform imperative duties for the welfare of others.
V. 40. "And those shall go away into eternal punishment; but the righteous to life eternal." If a man will not repent here it is not likely he would repent later. The Old Testament's burning message was to repent. It is the big word in the New Testament; it was the theme of the messages of Christ, of John the Baptist, of Peter on the day of Pentecost.

Discussion on S.S. Lesson

1. How reconcile the punishment of the wicked with God's love?
 2. What evidences are there that God's judgment is now operative?
 3. What effect has the consciousness of one's goodness on the real merit of character?
 4. What will be the principle of separation in the day of judgment?
 5. How can we be good neighbors?
 6. What modern inventions have multiplied our neighbors and what is their effect on moral obligations to others?
- Clericus says, "Every deed instantly crystallizes into destiny, drops into the soul a seed that will bear its final fruit on the day of judgment. We are every day our most common acts of service and sympathy, kindness and courtesy, building for the soul a house beautiful that will be its eternal home. No good deed of ours is ever lost, but is stored up for us against that day."
Lesson Prayer, "Help us realize the fact and meaning of the great judgment day where we shall appear with our real record and our true self as it was lived on earth."

HOW WOULD YOUNG PEOPLE FOR THE CHURCH SERVICE?
Dr. Harry Noble Wilson has solved the problem to some degree by making the church service particularly attractive to young people. Each Sunday evening he gets from the young people questions they would like to have answered and in addition preaches on a text suggested by the young people. As a result his sermons are varied and interesting. When the church and its minister prove to youth that they are sincerely interested in them and anxious to respond to their needs, they will find youth responding. Not only will an increased attendance result but there will be a development of real Christian leaders among the young men and women.

The fatal crash came after he had gained an altitude of 10,000 feet and was in the midst of a terrific dive.

TON-LITTERS THAN EVER THIS SEASON

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 29.—Ninety-three litters of Ohio pigs, this season attained a weight of one ton or more to the litter, while they were six months old. Records of the litters were kept in connection with the seventh year of the Ohio Ton-Litter project sponsored by the agricultural extension service of the Ohio State University here. The number is almost double the number of successful litters in previous years. Forty-eight litters in 1928 was the previous record.

The litters were from the herds of seventy different swine growers in twenty-seven counties of the state. Two men had four litters each in their herds and four men had three each. Forty-nine of this year's Ton-Litter Club members have never been members of the club before. The seventy members are the successful aspirants among nearly 300 hog-owners who enrolled for the project. The Ohio Ton-Litter Club now has 227 members.

Average number of pigs in each litter was 10.2 and the average weight of the litters was 2,005 pounds. Both averages compare very favorably with those of previous years. There were no phenomenally high weights. Growers enrolled in the project are urged to sell their pigs when the most profitable point in their feeding has been reached after they have passed the 2,000 pound mark, since there is no advantage in putting in additional feed without profit in order to make a record for poundage which may prove expensive.

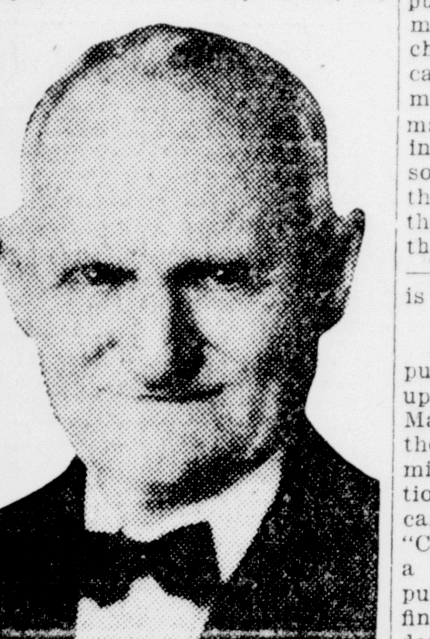

"The Ton-Litter project is not a contest and no prizes are offered for the heaviest litters. The idea of the project is to show the swine growers the profit and advantage of large litters of the right type pigs, well raised under sanitary conditions, and properly fed," says J. W. Wulch, extension specialist in swine growing, who is in charge of the project. "This means that the application of these practices to the largest number of litters in the largest number of herds is the measure of the success of the project from the standpoint of the swine growers."

Wulch believes that the large number of litters this year is due to two factors. One is the interest which has been shown and the large number of entries made, by vocational agriculture students in the high schools of the state. The other is the spreading knowledge and practice of the efficient methods of pork production.

Among the twenty-seven counties successfully producing ton-litters this year, Fairfield County leads with 27. The same county was in the lead last year. Richland County, with eleven litters, is in second place this year.

My liver, too, is in much better condition. Gone are the dizzy spells and the bilious attacks. My appetite is much better and I can eat anything I choose without suffering. REASONS FOR DEMOCRATIC LANDSLIDE IN INDIANA NOT EASILY ACCOUNTED FOR.

GEORGE V. COFFIN
REGINALD H. SULLIVAN

(Editor's Note: This is the second of a series of first-hand articles on the Indiana political upheaval. Others follow.)

By BONITA WITT
Central Press Staff Writer
INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 29.—Hoosierdom once again is front page news! The recent Democratic landslide which gave the party of Jefferson mayoralty victories in 60 per cent of the Indiana cities is political history.

Throughout the nation political leaders are trying to piece together a logical explanation of the Democratic inroads into the stronghold of Republicanism and to learn of its national significance.

Indianapolis Typical
Reginald Sullivan's victory in Indianapolis is typical of others throughout the state. He scored a two to one win over his Republican opponent, Alfred N. Glossbrenner and carried six councilmen with him in a city which normally is Republican by a 30,000 majority.

One doesn't get a clear conception of the real reasons for the landslide by visiting Republican headquarters. County Chairman Omer Hawkins pondered the question, then countered, "We wish someone could tell what happened. We can't account for it."

A half dozen or more ward and precinct leaders who sat discussing the election in his office were alike bewildered by the Sullivan victory. "The upheaval was not only confined to Indiana," he continued, "it was nationwide. 'Coffinism' as the leadership of George V. Coffin, who has been in power since 1924, is called. A lot of people in Indianapolis are against 'Cap' because they can't run him. Consequently they raised the cry of 'Coffinism' to confuse the voters. To me it seems the landslide was a combination of many things. Don't you think it possible that the tremendous crash of stock market values had its effect on the voting public? Unemployment also has made the people anxious for a change. They think the Republicans are responsible for unemployment so they voted against our man. Failure of the party in Washington to hold its men in line also has had its effect throughout the country. It isn't only Indiana that has been turned topsy-turvy—the whole country has been upset—but the present state of affairs is not permanent."

Dissatisfaction With Klan
Alvah J. Rucker, prominent Republican attorney, who helped draw up impeachment proceedings against Mayor John Duvall, characterized the Democratic victory as the culmination of years of dissatisfaction with Klan controlled Republicanism. Duvall, El Jackson and "Coffinism." Times were ripe for a change," he says, "and the Republicans, eager to get rid of Coffin, joined with the Democrats to defeat Glossbrenner who had the backing of Coffin."

Reginald Sullivan, bachelor mayor-elect has been prominent in Democratic circles for years and once held the office of state senator. His father, Thomas L. Sullivan, 83, has served twice as mayor of Indianapolis. He first was elected forty years ago.

With three score years of political observation behind him he sees nothing unusual in the present election. "Things like this happen in cycles," he says. "One party gets into power and things go along smoothly, then they put weak men in office, the voters become dissatisfied with the corruption, put them out of office and the story again repeats itself."

Labor Played a Part
Labor also played an important part in the past campaign. Glossbrenner was an advocate of the open shop. The working men voted against him and also the employers who had no inclination to antagonize their men.

Those who wanted to see the manager plan go into effect supported Sullivan for mayor because he had been actively associated with the manager plan movement.

Some observers characterize the vote as negative, declaring the Democrats and Republicans who broke party lines voted not for

INSURANCE POLICY CHANGE ORDERED BY OFFICIAL OF STATE

COLUMBUS, Nov. 29.—On and after July 1, 1930, every legal reserve life insurance policy thereafter written in Ohio, which carries with it total and permanent disability benefits, must embrace the uniform provisions for total and permanent disability benefits which were adopted by the National Association of Insurance Commissioners at its meeting in Toronto in September, according to an order issued by Judge C. S. Younger, state superintendent of insurance.

Judge Younger has sent a letter to every legal reserve life insurance company in Ohio, stating that on and after July 1st, next, the department will approve only such total and permanent disability classes as contain in substance the uniform provisions.

Approval of all disability clauses filed in connection with legal reserve life insurance policies will be withdrawn, June 30, 1930. A joint committee of state and company actuaries, of which Walter A. Robinson, actuary of the Ohio Insurance Department, was a member, prepared the new uniform provisions.

Judge Younger said that the effect of the ruling will be that all legal reserve life insurance policies hereafter written in Ohio, which provide for total and permanent disability benefits, will, in effect, be identical. Previously there has been a wide variance among the disability provisions of legal reserve life insurance policies, and the new ruling will make these provisions uniform.

SCHOOLS SHORTEN CHRISTMAS HOLIDAY

Village and rural schools in Greene County, with the exception of Spring Valley and Cedarville consolidated districts, will not observe New Year's Day as a holiday, it is disclosed by H. C. Aultman, county school superintendent.

Announcement was made by Superintendent Aultman that other schools will be dismissed for the Christmas vacation December 29 and classes will re-convene December 30, continuing through New Year's Day. Pupils of Spring Valley and Cedarville schools, however, will have a two-week vacation, starting December 29 and lasting until January 6.

Adopted in order to provide for earlier dismissal of rural schools next spring when help of the boys and girls is needed on the farms, the shortened mid-year holiday season meets the approval of the schools concerned, according to Superintendent Aultman.

BRINGING UP FATHER

The Theater

This column, the other day, revealed the modest domain of Martin Flavin, the playwright, who, although he has three current successes on Broadway, is almost unknown outside the stage fraternity.

It may be interesting therefore, to repeat today a review by David P. Sontner of one of his plays: "Someday there may be a memorial shaft to the Unknown Dishwasher, immortalizing those unending and unmeddled domestic solers in the kitchen trenches."

"With or without this beautiful thought in mind, 'Broken Dishes,' by Martin Flavin, is dedicated to the man who wears the apron."

"I am of the suspicion that there are three or four such kitchen forms for every man-about-town of broad city highways, and four or five such knights of the dishrag for every wife-beater."

"And it is not at all improbable that a statistical survey of the men behind the dishpan would reveal an appalling loss in chin-ware."

"The pieces, if laid bit to bit, might reach from the cradle to the grave and take 700 riveters using their hands 204 days to equal it. Even a similar amount of dishes, if annihilated, if they understood each word."

"Donald Meed plays the role of a husband. The putter-box is a husband."

"We mother goes to the move. With her two eldest daughters, and Elaine, his youngest daughter, do the mopping up."

"But something occurs as exciting as the night before Christmas: the average middle class home, Elaine revolts, stages a marriage with the boy she loves but her mother doesn't and calls on a shuffle-footed old father to aid his assistance."

"Father does his best between popping dishes and drinking hard."

"It is funny and pathetic."

"One of the verbal cudgels with which Mrs. Bumpstead has

Minute Reviews of Plays in NEW YORK

SHERLOCK HOLMES, at the New Amsterdam: The revival of this classic of mystery plays, written by William Gillette and Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, and first presented in New York in 1899, brings back a magic the theater seems to have lost. Gillette, now 74, as the silent masterful detective once more puts into flesh and blood Sir Arthur's world-famous character. It does seem as if mystery plays have become worse instead of better in 30 years, for this one makes some of the later ones look foolish, even if it does creek with age.

THE GAME OF LOVE AND DEATH, at the Knickerbocker: The Theater Guild for the second time this season gets considerable adverse criticism. This play of Romain Rolland's from the French, and one of a series of this noted writer's on the French revolution, seems dead weight. It reads well but acting it is another matter.

OHIO COLORS WILL BE PROMINENT AT LIVESTOCK SHOW

CHICAGO, Nov. 29.—The colors of the Buckeye state will be vividly apparent in the galaxy of livestock when the International Live Stock Exposition celebrates its thirtieth anniversary at Chicago November 30 to December 7.

With twenty-one different breeds of livestock on the entry list, sent from the feed-lots and stables of thirty-two of the foremost pure-bred establishments in Ohio, a wide representation of the state's varied farm population will be on display.

Famed throughout the country as a source supply of some of the best draft horses in America, Ohio's leading horsemen will uphold the reputation of the state in the national competition at the Chicago exposition. Those who favor the Percheron horse, and by their winnings with this breed at former internationals have done much to advertise Ohio's choice horse population, are Woodside Farms, of Columbus, whose stallion, Sir Laet, was the grand-champion Percheron stallion at the 1928 international exposition; A. K. Basso of Norwalk, a Belgian draft horse with six show horses; Glenn S. Sonner, a winner of several blue and top ribbons in the 1928 Percheron competition at Chicago. Other exhibitors of this breed, which the exposition management announces have entries are Edwin W. Wolf, of Kenton; W. C. Ziegler, of Delaware and Cecil A. Reed, of London.

Ohio also boasts of some of the best specimens of the Belgian draft horse to found in America. Indicative of this fact was the coveted grand-championship in the stallion classes of this breed going to an Ohio firm at last year's International Live Stock Exposition, when Charles A. Wentz and Sons, of Kirby, Ohio, received this high honor on their stallion, Loreau 2nd. This famous horse first won the championship at the Chicago show in 1927, when his owners were presented with the "King Albert Cup" annually awarded to the exhibitor of the grand-champion Belgian stallion, as a recognition from the king of the Belgians.

Besides Wentz and Sons, Ohio Belgians will be shown at Chicago this year by Lower Gwynne Farm, of Mt. Sterling, Ohio State University, Elva Stover and Son, Carlos Snyder and Sons, of New London, and Sweet Briar Farm, of Gate Mills.

SECOND CRASH VICTIM

CYNTHIANA, Ky., Nov. 29.—Clarence Franklin, 30, is dead as a result of injuries in an auto accident, Sunday, in which Miss Bertha Richey, 20, his companion, was killed.

Innocent Victims in Chicago Tragedy

The innocent suffer privation and other evils as a direct result of the faults of some other person. Such is the fate of Mrs. Samuel T. Dorr and her two-year-old daughter, Mary Louise, who are innocent victims of a sorry triangle shooting in Chicago. Their husband and father with Mrs. Genevieve O'Brien is held for the shooting of William O'Brien. (Right) Mrs. O'Brien, accused of aiding in her husband's slaying, supported by a police matron as she gazed at the jurors at the inquest.

Farm Notes

ALFALFA, WARM WATER INCREASE WINTER EGGS

Alfalfa or green feed, warm water and artificial light in addition to a good grain ration and good management are necessary to high winter egg production, according to P. R. Record, assistant in the poultry division at the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station.

These are all practical and come as near as possible to duplicating spring conditions when egg production is naturally at its peak. In spring there is an abundance of green feed. Experiments at the Ohio Station have proved that properly cured alfalfa is an excellent substitute for fresh green feed which may be difficult to supply in winter.

The alfalfa leaves may be fed whole or ground into alfalfa meal and mixed in the mash at the rate of five pounds per hundred pounds of mash, or if good alfalfa hay is available it may be chopped and placed in suitable hay feeders and kept before the hens at all times.

It is also essential that the hens consume plenty of water. This they will do if clean warm water is kept before them throughout the day. They will not drink enough water if it is cold or if it is before them only a short time.

In spring the days are longer giving the birds more time in which to consume feed for the production of eggs. This condition may be brought about in winter by the use of artificial lights in the morning.

YOUNG GIRL LEARNS TO BECOME FLYER

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 29.—An intense desire to fly, inspired as a child refugee in Belgium by watching the aerial antics of crack American airmen during the World War, is being realized here by Patricia Brydell, pretty 19-year-old aviation student.

Miss Brydell is receiving her first and primary instruction in operating a plane at present though her first flight was made as a passenger more than twelve years ago, when aircraft was primarily a weapon of war.

At that time—1917—she was living in Ghent, Belgium, her birthplace. For ten years she lived with

WOMAN BURNS TO DEATH NEAR HERE

GALE-SWEPT FLAMES WRECK RESORT WITH LOSS OF $2,000,000

Massachusetts Beach Resort Destroyed; Fireman Hurt

NANTASKET BEACH, Mass., Nov. 29.—Investigation by state, town, county and steamboat authorities was launched today into the spectacular fire of undetermined origin which, fanned by a forty-mile-an-hour gale, last evening did damage estimated at close to two million dollars and threatened for five hours to sweep this seaside resort from end to end.

Five passenger steamboats, known to thousands of excursionists from all sections of the country as "The Sweetheart Fleet," the Nantasket Steamboat Company's pier shed, office, coal pocket and waiting room, a powerboat, the men's section of the State bath house, and three houses in the Atlantic Hill section were icy coated ruins today.

Damage had also been done by the flames over a two-mile area to St. Mary's of Assumption Church, a sixth steamboat, Hotel Massiot, summit house and a score of cottages and other buildings along Atlantic Avenue, Atlantic Road, Valley Beach and Atlantic Hill, blazing embers falling over the wide area.

Lieutenant William J. Hatch, a fireman, was seriously injured and was in Cohasset Hospital today. Two policemen were less seriously hurt and a dozen firemen were temporarily overcome by smoke.

Wrecked firemen from eight south shore cities and towns, some of them ice coated, were still pouring streams of water into the ruins today as insurance against a fresh outbreak.

Estimates of the damage ran from $1,250,000 to more than $2,000,000. Steamboat company officials estimated the value of the steamboats destroyed—The Betty Alden, Nantasket, Rose Standish, Mary Chilton, and Old Colony—at a million dollars with a replacement value of about two million dollars.

Stories of heroism were recorded. Firemen Hatch, injured by falling through a roof of a bath house, was rescued by his mate, Fireman Frank Thompson, rescued from the blazing bath house Police Sergeant Thomas Kelleher, who fractured his arm.

A group of firemen rescued three of their companions who fell into the icy sea from a dory alongside the burning steamboat Old Colony.

WEALTHY MAN KILLS WIFE AND SUICIDES IN CHICAGO HOTEL

Ill Health, Market Losses Blamed For Double Tragedy

CHICAGO, Nov. 29.—Records indicating heavy losses on the stock market today offered a possible motive for the double tragedy in which James B. Pauley, wealthy coal mine operator, shot and killed his wife and himself in their hotel suite here yesterday.

The double shooting occurred as the middle-aged couple was dressing preparatory to leaving for the home of friends where they were to be guests at Thanksgiving dinner.

Pauley, who is chairman of the Miami Coal Co., is believed to have yielded to a sudden impulse when he shot his wife, according to Coroner Herman N. Budenstein. Grieved in Mrs. Pauley's hand when her body was found was a magazine opened at a crossword puzzle which she had been working. There was a bullet wound in her right temple.

Clad in a dressing gown, the body of Pauley was found on the bathroom floor. Beside him was a 32 calibre revolver with two empty chambers. It was evident, according to police, that Pauley had shot his wife and then walked into the bathroom and killed himself before a mirror.

An impatient chauffeur waiting to drive them to their friends' home for dinner, was responsible for the investigation that revealed the tragedy.

Pauley's recent ill health together with numerous documents found in the apartment showing heavy stock transactions are believed by police to furnish a motive for the tragedy.

Mrs. Pauley, before her marriage to the coal magnate, was Elinor Ludlow, a famed Ohio beauty. The late Governor Asa Bushnell of Ohio was her uncle. Before her marriage to Pauley she had been reported engaged to Captain Richmond Pearson Hobson, hero of the Merrimac in the Spanish American War.

REPORTER HURT

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 29.—Miss Pauline Smith, reporter for a local newspaper, is in Grant Hospital here today suffering from severe hurts as the result of an automobile accident yesterday when she was enroute to Coshocton with her brother, Fred. The machine, which was driven by her brother, skidded from the road twenty miles east of here and struck a road scraper. Her brother was uninjured.

BLIZZARD SWEEPS STATE

PENNSYLVANIA MAY HAVE DEMOCRAT FOR SENATOR IS REPORT

Unseating Of Vane Would Put Wilson In Upper House

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—A life-long Democrat will represent the solidly Republican state of Pennsylvania in the senate for the first time in modern history if a Democratic-Insurgent coalition succeeds in its present plan to unseat Senator-elect William S. Vare (R) in favor of William B. Wilson, Democrat and a member of the wartime cabinet of Woodrow Wilson.

Leaders of the coalition announced today they would try to seat Wilson on the ground that Vare's official election was voided by fraud, irregularities and corruption. There appeared to be likelihood of the coalition-winning, because Vare rolled up an official majority of 200,000 votes, which will have to be thrown out by the senate before Wilson would be entitled to the senatorial seat, such a result appeared impossible.

The whole contest, which opens in the senate next Tuesday, revolves around the question of election frauds in Pittsburgh and Philadelphia, the two machine-controlled cities which gave tremendous majorities to Vare in his 1928 election. This clash over the seat incidentally has no connection with the effort to bar Vare because of excessive expenditures in the preceding primary. Consequently, even if the Vare-Wilson contest is decided in the Republican's favor, he probably will be rejected because of the primary contest.

The fight of Wilson for a senatorial toga will be handled by Senator Norris (R) of Nebraska, Insurgent leader, and Senator Caraway (D) of Arkansas. Both were hopeful of seating the Democrat. One report had it that they would contend Wilson had won by a bare majority of 903 votes with all the allegedly illegal Vare votes ignored.

In order to win, Wilson must have the senate decide to throw out:

1. All votes cast in Allegheny County (Pittsburgh) on the ground of corruption, since 13 per cent of all the Republican voters were paid fees on that election day as watchers or messengers.
2. All votes cast in 300 Philadelphia divisions (precincts), because the ballot boxes were delivered to city hall before 10 p. m. on the election—indicating the ballots couldn't have been counted.
3. All votes in thirty-eight Philadelphia precincts, where voters were listed alphabetically in the voters' checklist, indicating ballot stuffing.
4. All votes in 100 Philadelphia precincts where poll tax receipts were proven irregular, indicating fraudulent voting.
5. All votes in sixty Philadelphia precincts where election officials served as registrars or were not themselves registered voters.

FRIENDLY GAME IS ENDED BY STABBING

TOLEDO, O., Nov. 29.—A friendly Thanksgiving Day game of pinochisti had resulted in stab wounds to three men and the arrest of a fourth man.

Nineteen stitches were required to close the forehead and face wounds of George Evanoff, 41, Egan Pouchoff, 44, suffered wounds in the left shoulder and Tony Thompson, 50, was stabbed in the back.

The fourth man was taken to jail and charged with disturbing the peace.

An argument over points is said to have started the melee.

WOMAN INJURED WHEN ENGINE HITS AUTO AT RAIL CROSSING

Mrs. Christine Davis, 129 Apple St., Dayton, suffered deep cuts on the forehead, painful bruises and a possible fractured rib but her brother-in-law, Claude Harsh, same address, escaped unhurt when their auto, struck by a Pennsylvania freight train at the W. Main St. crossing at 9:45 a. m. Friday, was pushed along the rails in front of the locomotive to the Market St. crossing, where it overturned beside the track.

Harsh, who was driving the coach east on Main St., observed the signal lights guarding the crossing flashing but when he applied the brakes the car skidded on the ice-coated street onto the crossing in front of the train, a double-header, No. 29, bound from Columbus to Richmond, Ind. The machine caught on the cowcatcher of the first engine and with its occupants inside was pushed ahead of the train for a square before the train could be stopped. The machine was badly damaged.

CARBON MONOXIDE GAS OVERCOMES EIGHT IN BUS

CLEVELAND, Nov. 29.—Eight persons, two of them women, passengers on a Pittsburgh-Detroit bus were overcome by carbon monoxide here today when the bus was pulled into a garage for repairs. All of the passengers were fed oxygen at Charity Hospital in resuscitation treatments. None was reported in a serious condition.

A few minutes after the bus had entered the garage to have a broken windshield repaired, attendants noticed the driver of the bus and the passengers slumped over in their seats in curiously quiet attitudes.

Police and fire squads were summoned immediately to render first aid. It is believed that the deadly gas poured into the bus from beneath the cab.

Those overcome are: Henry Manion, Detroit; William Webber, Cumberland, Md.; Louise Winslow, Philadelphia; William Anderson, Detroit; F. E. Molter, Youngstown; Tyne Hantulla, Detroit; and Walter Moets, Cleveland.

POLA NEGRI BRINGS SUIT FOR DIVORCE; PRINCE BESPOKEN

Exotic Foreign Film Star Found Him Incompatible

PARIS, Nov. 29.—Pola Negri, exotic beauty of the screen, today filed suit for divorce from her husband, Prince Mdivani.

The film star asked a decree under her real name, Apolline Chaloupe.

Miss Negri based her application on the grounds of incompatibility. Filing of the divorce action had been expected for some time, as the impetuous Polish screen star and her husband, scion of a family from the country of Georgia, once a Russian province, have been separated for a considerable period.

Some time ago Miss Mary McCormick, famous opera singer, and protégée of Mary Garden, announced that she would be married to the prince as soon as he had been divorced from Miss Negri. At the time, Miss McCormick jokingly told International News Service she would force the prince to change his name to "McDivans" in order that her children might bear an appellation that had an Irish ring.

Miss McCormick was born in Belleville, Ark. Her present residence is in Paris. This was Miss Negri's second venture into matrimony. Her first husband was Baron Popper, a Polish army officer, from whom she was divorced before she came to America as a movie discovery of Ernest Lubitsch, the well-known director.

During her years of success in Hollywood, Miss Negri was variously reported engaged to many famous screen stars, including Charles Chaplin and Rudolph Valentino. Miss Negri's pilgrimage from Hollywood to New York to be present at Valentino's funeral, when she declared that death had robbed her of the "world's greatest lover," will long remain a saga of moviedom.

Miss Negri has spent the greater part of the last two years in Europe, negotiating with British and French motion picture producing concerns to make films. She recently told interviewers here she was tired of Hollywood, and that she found in European studios a more sympathetic reaction to her exotic temperament.

WARMER SATURDAY COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 29.—Today's weather forecast:

Ohio: Generally fair tonight and Saturday. Slightly colder in east and south portions tonight. Slowly rising temperatures Saturday.

WHITE OR DARK?

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—Before another Thanksgiving Day rolls around the poultry division of the department of agriculture will outline plans for the sale of half-turkeys, an economic step that should put turkey on perhaps twice as many tables and should stabilize the market for Thanksgiving turkeys, it was announced today.

Roy C. Potts, chief of the dairy and poultry division of the bureau of agricultural economics, said the average turkey consumption of one person at one meal is estimated at six ounces, and consequently a ten-pound bird seems more than is required by a family of the average size.

NATIONALIST BODY DENIES KNOWLEDGE OF PEACE PROPOSAL

Dispute With Soviets Complicated By Announcement

LONDON, Nov. 29.—The tangled situation between Soviet Russia and China was further complicated today by statements in the highest authoritative circles here that the Nationalist Chinese government at Nanking was "no knowledge whatever" of the peace negotiations which were reported to have reached a satisfactory conclusion.

While reports from Moscow and Mukden, headquarters of the Manchurian government, indicated that the long-drawn-out and bloody controversy between the Asiatic powers had been ended by China's agreement to certain demands of the Soviets regarding disputed issues, it was stated here that the Nanking officials were utterly in the dark.

Through its diplomatic officials, Great Britain has kept in constant touch with Nanking, the seat of the present Chinese government, and considerable surprise was expressed yesterday when through the heralded peace agreement was a matter concerning which the president of China and his cabinet were in total ignorance.

At Nanking, according to the information here, a wireless message was picked up from the Soviet broadcasting station at Habarovsk which was interpreted as a "peace" feeling, but so far as the Nationalist government is concerned, the settlement has not reached a more tangible state. Efforts to reconcile this development with the detailed dispatches from Moscow and Mukden concerning the settlement leads to the belief that Manchurian officials took the matter into their own hands and capitulated to the Soviets rather than sustain further defeats in border conflicts.

The Soviet government had been justifying its military manoeuvres on the border by the claim that China's seizure of the Chinese Eastern Railway and its subsequent refusal to re-install Soviet officials of the line was tantamount to a breach of the peace.

According to the Mukden and Moscow messages, China agreed to reappoint a Soviet manager for the railway system, and that henceforth the line would be operated under joint management.

OHIO GRIPPED WITH FIRST WINTER WAVE AND MERCURY FALLS

"White Thanksgiving" Unusual; Traffic Is Suffering

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 29.—A raging blizzard blustered through northern Ohio last night and early today leaving behind a trail of heavy snow and the cold breath of winter.

The temperature dropped to 18.

A spread of snow of from three to more than six inches depth, presented northern Ohio as a "study in white" today. It gave, incidentally, this section of the state its first "white Thanksgiving" in years.

Aside from the beauty of the snow-covered landscape, however, the drifts presented a grave problem to city and county officials. Traffic was badly hampered this morning as it attempted to plow through the drifts. Thousands of laborers set out early to lift the six-inch blanket from highways, roads and streets.

Automobiles were forced to creep cautiously and passenger buses arrived at their destinations hours late. Scores of minor wrecks were reported.

Weather forecasters predicted this morning that the thermometer will probably send the mercury to between 10 and 15 degrees before the current cold snap will end.

Eleven fires in Cleveland were caused by overheated furnaces which were stoked up by Thanksgiving holiday celebrants.

The greatest burden from the snow-sheathed highways and streets—next to the shovelers and scrapers—fell upon automobile clubs and garages throughout northern Ohio. Calls after calls were received from snow-stuck motorists.

In Youngstown, at least one traffic fatality was blamed on the blizzard. August Wollett, 43, died of injuries received when a hit-skip driver skidded into him.

A near tragedy was narrowly avoided in Akron when a large Cleveland-Akron bus skidded and plunged toward the railing on a viaduct. The bus with its eight passengers was saved from a 100-foot dive over the viaduct when it crashed into a pole.

The most serious of the fires which broke out in Cleveland was that which destroyed a shed in the Dwight Hinkley lumber yard here. The blaze, whipped by the snowstorm, caused $200,000 damages.

Twenty students were routed by a blaze which broke out in the Alpha Delta Phi fraternity house on the Western Reserve University campus here. Damage was estimated at more than $2,500. No one was injured.

CHICAGO, Nov. 29.—Zero temperatures and snow storms which turned to blizzards held the middle west region in the grip of winter today.

Driven before a severe wind, a blizzard swept Iowa, Nebraska, Missouri and the Dakotas last night. The storm center was reported between Sioux City, Ia., and Aberdeen, S. D., with a snowfall that measured four inches in many places.

Temperatures in the Chicago region stood near the zero point. At Duluth, Minn., a temperature of 14 degrees below zero was reported.

DENVER, Colo., Nov. 29.—Denver and most of the Rocky Mountain region were in the midst of the twelfth snowstorm of the season today. Freezing and rapidly dropping temperatures were predicted.

The storm followed a drizzle of rain quickly followed by sleet, then snow early last night, and continued without abatement at 7 o'clock this morning.

INVALID PERISHES IN FIRE THAT DESTROYS FARM HOUSE FRIDAY

May Reach Senate

Mrs. Nellie Taylor Ross, former Democratic governor of Wyoming, is being discussed as a candidate for the senate seat left vacant by the death of Senator Francis Warren. If elected, she would be the first woman to sit in the senate. In 1922, Mrs. Rebecca Felton, of Georgia, served for one day by special recognition.

Mrs. Newton Smith, 75, Victim Of Lower Bellbrook Pike Blaze

Mrs. Minerva Smith, about 75, was burned to death when a fire, following what is believed to have been an explosion of a coal oil cook stove in the kitchen, destroyed the six-room, two-story farm residence in which she made her home with her two sons, Ollie and Roy, on a farm on the Lower Bellbrook Pike, five miles southwest of Xenia, at 10 o'clock Friday morning.

The aged woman, who had been a semi-invalid for a number of years because of rheumatism, was alone in the house at the time and was in the kitchen engaged in preparing the noon meal when her sons left on a trip to Spring Valley.

Half an hour later it is presumed the stove either exploded, burning her so badly that she was trapped in the room and unable to escape, or that her clothing became ignited from the flames, which subsequently set fire to the house.

The farm house, situated atop a high hill, was a mass of flames when the blaze was first noticed by Samuel Kneel, a neighbor. Fanned by a stiff wind, the flames gained headway and neighboring farmers who gathered at the residence watched helplessly, unable to combat the fire and unaware that anyone was inside.

The Smith brothers returned home before the house was completely burned down with its contents.

The charred body of the woman, burned almost beyond recognition, was discovered when the ruins were searched. The remains were removed to the undertaking establishment of Ralph M. Neeld, pending completion of funeral arrangements.

Loss to the building and contents is estimated at several thousand dollars. It is not known whether the property was insured.

Mrs. Smith is survived, besides her two sons, by two daughters, Mrs. Benjamin Kennedy, of the Union neighborhood, and Mrs. Mollie Owens, Chicago, Ill.; and a niece, Mrs. John A. Simson, Dayton Ave., Xenia. Her husband, Newton Smith, preceded her in death about eight years. Another son, John, also died several years ago.

Coroner Frank M. Chambliss and L. A. Davis, county road patrolman, were summoned, the coroner giving a verbal verdict of accident at death.

ICE BREAKS: THREE PERISH

AUGUSTA, Me., Nov. 29.—Mr. and Mrs. Eugene H. Parlin, are in a serious condition today having nearly sacrificed their lives in a frantic but unsuccessful attempt to rescue their three little daughters who were drowned before the mother's eyes when they fell through the thin ice on two-mile brook. The children were Beatrice, 5, Irene, 6, and Catherine, 8, Alberta, 8.

Mrs. Parlin, who was dragged from the ice water by her 11-year-old son, Leverett, had tried to rescue her children. The father, called to the scene, also jumped into the icy water and was pulled to safety from under the ice by his brother, Lowell.

GIRL FLYERS BRING PLANE DOWN AFTER FLIGHT IS FAILURE

Endurance Attempt Is Halted By Inability To Obtain Fuel

METROPOLITAN AIRPORT, LOS ANGELES, Nov. 29.—Ending their fifth attempt to lower the world's refueling endurance flight record, Bobby Trout, of Los Angeles, and Elinor Smith, of New York, brought their Sunbeam biplane to earth here at 3:45 a. m. today, after having been aloft continuously for forty-two hours and five minutes.

The girl flyers' brave effort to better the mark of 420 hours and twenty-one minutes, set up by Dale Jackson and Forrest O'Brien in St. Louis, ended in failure because of a dwindling fuel supply that could not be replenished. Their regular refueling ship had met with accident and it was impossible to establish contact with the substitute "nurse" plane on account of bumpy air.

Despite failure to attain their self-set goal of 500 hours of continuous flying, the young aviators had set up two new records in their adventure. Their time in the air represented the world's refueling endurance mark for women and the world's sustained flight record for women, which formerly was twenty-seven hours, established by Miss Smith herself over Roosevelt Field, New York.

Undaunted by the misfortune which dogged them, both girls emerged from the cockpit of their craft, smiling to a great crowd which had gathered at the airport, despite the early morning hour. They disdained assistance of field mechanics who sought to help them out of their plane and fairly jumped to the ground.

Their long ordeal in the air seemed to leave little trace of fatigue on their pretty faces. A few minutes after their perfect landing they announced their intention of starting another record attempt next Saturday morning.

DANNEMORE PRISON HAS RIOT THREAT

DANNEMORE, N. Y., Nov. 29.—State troopers were on the alert at Dannemore Prison today to guard against another outbreak among the 1,300 prisoners.

Protected by the guns of the guards, a score of telephone linemen and repairmen busied themselves in repairing the damage reported to have been done by the prisoners yesterday.

What looked like the forerunner of another riot broke out when prison authorities released from solitary confinement a dozen of the ringleaders in last July's riot in which three convicts were killed. The ringleaders immediately began to upbraid their fellow prisoners because of the failure of their plot to escape and the guards were forced to step in to restore order.

JAP DIPLOMAT ENDS LIFE WITH PISTOL

TOKIO, Nov. 29.—Sadao Suburi, Japanese charge d'affaires at Washington, committed suicide today by shooting himself in his room in the Fujiya Hotel at Miyako-cho.

A chambermaid in the mountain resort hotel about forty miles south of Tokio, heard the shot and found the diplomat lying on the floor with a bullet wound in his head. He died shortly afterward.

Grieved over the death of his wife just three years ago today was believed to have caused him to take his life. He constantly grieved for her.

Suburi was fifty years old and was regarded as one of the most brilliant of Japan's diplomats.

MONEY IS GONE

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 29.—Thomas Garcia, Mansfield, O., reported to police here today that upon waking this morning he had "lost" $2,500 and two "business acquaintances."

On the advice of the "friends," Garcia said he had withdrawn $2,500 from a Mansfield bank and come to Cleveland with them. They took a room in a downtown Cleveland hotel. This morning the men and the money were among the missing.

ACCIDENTALLY KILLED

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—Leo Atwell, 16, was dead today from the accidental discharge of his own shotgun. Hunting in nearby Virginia yesterday, he placed his gun momentarily against a tree. It fell, the jar to the ground released its charge of shot. He died instantly.

READ THIS FIRST:

Rosalie March, seventeen, works at the hosiery counter of a department store, a position she secured through the kindness of Kenessa DuBarry, an actress, who took pity on her when Rosalie's mother died. Rosalie is adored by her landlady, Mother Murphy, and little Tim O'Hara, the corner newsie. Alberto Martino, the store detective, threatens Rosalie with arrest when he catches her with a pair of silk stockings she has taken until payday. He prevails upon her to hide some suitcases in her room. Roy Clarke Andrews, nephew of the store owner, asks Rosalie to marry him. Martino's gang kidnaps Roy, and when Rosalie threatens to expose him, Martino is mysteriously shot. The police arrive.

Of course, Rosalie is accused of the murder, and is taken to the station to be questioned.

Rosalie does not know who shot Martino. After questioning, Rosalie is put in charge of Aunt Bessie, at the woman's bureau.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXXV

The Philadelphia newspaper world was topsy turvy with two of the biggest stories they had ever had at one time. The Roy Andrews disappearance—and the March Hate murder. They were all calling it that now, "The Hate Murder."

Sob sisters were running riot, sinking ink pots full of tears for the benefit of a greedy public. Reporter dispatched to Rendale came back with a verification of the fact that three months before Rosalie was an innocent little high school girl. There were stories of her mother's death, their poverty—and how, aided by an actress, she had gone to Philadelphia to find work.

It was hot copy. There MUST be a man back of it somewhere. Where had she got the gun? An innocent, little seventeen-year-old girl, who had never seen a gun in her whole life before. It MUST be a love motive. And anyone who has ever been near a newspaper office knows that a love motive is to a city editor what a red rag is to a bull.

He sees red headlines screaming all the way across his paper—like blood.

Such an editor was John Earle Shannon of the Philadelphia Tribune. Of the new school, he believed in giving the public what they wanted. That's what he was getting paid for.

"Dow! Rowdy Dow!"

"His master's voice," Rowdy cupped an ear with his hand, got up lazily from his desk, and stretched. "Call me?"

"Yes, shiftless—YOT!"

Rowdy, with maddening leisure, strolled over and sat down on the waste paper basket beside the city desk. He had been christened Keith Dow. And whoever first thought of the "Rowdy" gave him a handle that fitted perfectly. He was exactly that. A "rowdy dow" boy—here today, and gone today.

Shannon grinned at him good naturedly. Sometimes he would have liked to knock his block off. Other times he loved him like a brother. And no one would deny that he was one of the best and one of the worst newspaper men in the United States. How to keep him in one spot long enough to get any good out of him was a question that had driven more than one city editor out for a good-sized drink.

"Rowdy," Shannon leaned over confidentially, as if he were about to offer a large raise in salary. "I'm going to put you on the Hate Murder."

Rowdy looked his disgust. "You WOULD. Ain't I had enough molls with itchy trigger fingers to deal with in my life without you throwin' one right in my face ever' day?"

"Oh, but this is different," Shannon grinned, and picked up the paper. "Look at that figure. Look at them eyes."

"So's poison ivy pretty," Rowdy threw the picture down indifferently.

"Well, I want you to go out and sex appeal a real story out of that damsel—and don't come back till you got it."

That was an order that interested Rowdy strangely.

"Call me?"

"I don't have to come back till I get something real?"

"No."

"How much expense money do I get?"

Shannon groaned. Rowdy leaned over seriously.

"No foolin', boss, I got an idea that's been runnin' around in my head about that story ever since it broke. Give me all the time and money I want and I'll crack it for you."

"Yeah—you'll go off on a bat and get some of these other yaps to cover you, that's what you'll do."

Rowdy tried to look hurt.

"Why, boss! How can you say such a thing?"

Then he grinned. When Rowdy Dow grinned the battle was lost.

"All right," Shannon acquiesced.

"But, what have you got up your sleeve?"

"Gawd, you guys are a bunch of nitwits," Rowdy leaned over confidentially. "Haven't you ever thought that the disappearance of young Roy Andrews might have had something to do with that girl from the same store shooting the house dick?"

Shannon's eyes popped with astonishment.

Interview from the March girl that would hook up the two. It was as easy getting in to see Mussolini as to get into the Moyansing prison to interview a woman held for murder. But an hour later Rowdy had succeeded in pulling wires so that he had been granted permission. Nearly every police official in Philadelphia swore by and at Rowdy Dow. He had a nice little way of riding them through the headlines if they didn't do exactly what he wanted them to.

The next day he was just as likely to make up for it by giving them credit for doing one of the most heroic and altogether manly deeds they had ever dreamed of. His motto with them had always been:

"You play ball with me and I'll play ball with you."

When Rosalie was told a reporter was coming in to interview her she sat up on her cot and mechanically pushed back the hair from her pale face.

There was nothing to do but wait and wait and wait. Days and days of waiting for the grand jury. One day seemed just like another. Iron bars, distasteful food, solitude, memories

FIRE SWEEPS NEED GARAGE

Fire which broke out in a frame garage in the rear of the R. M. Need undertaking establishment at 42 W. Main St., early Friday afternoon threatened for a time to spread to adjoining business buildings but was believed under control of firemen, whose efforts to extinguish the blaze were considerably handicapped by dense clouds of smoke. A closed automobile in the garage was pulled to safety after the top was damaged by the flames. Smoke filled the funeral parlors as well as the Kafory barber shop.

COMMUNITY CHE ST FUND STILL SHORT $1,500 WORKERS REPORT

Xenia's 1929 Community Fund is still short $1,500.

An appeal issued by fund workers Thursday for voluntary contributions and for previous subscribers to increase their donations if possible, apparently fell on deaf ears because Thanksgiving Day was not what the name implied as far as the chest was concerned.

Fund leaders reiterated Friday the announcement that contributions in order to help reduce the deficit will be welcomed until next Tuesday although the actual campaign of solicitation ended Wednesday and a second appeal is being issued for citizens to give generously.

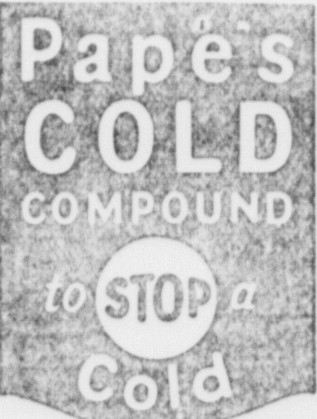

It is believed that the cold weather of the last few days will be a help to the fund. Workers hope that it will bring many people to a realization of the need of the kind of charitable work which the community fund makes possible.

It may be particularly helpful in obtaining additional subscriptions from those who have already given liberally, but who are willing to dig a bit deeper in their pockets in order to make sure that the ten welfare agencies participating in the drive will not suffer from lack of funds next year.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

THE TESTIMONY OF SCRIPTURE—Search the Scriptures; for in them ye think ye have eternal life: and they are they which testify of me.—John 5:39.

ROAD BUILDING

Impelled by forces now getting behind public work of every character, and especially under the leadership of President Hoover, plans are in the making for increased activity in road building as one of the most far-reaching and constructive agencies in national progress.

In preparation for this objective, and for the consideration of other matters concerning highway improvement, members of the American Association of State Highway Officials have just held their regular annual meeting at San Antonio, Texas. This body is composed exclusively of highway officials who represent every state in the union and who also co-operate closely with the Federal government in the administration of Federal Aid. At this meeting, legislative and financial needs in highway work for the immediate future were discussed and a resolution was passed recommending to Congress that the Federal Aid appropriations be increased to $125,000,000.

In carrying on their part of the nation's work, highway officials are stressing the importance of completing the main Federal Aid project as originally planned. This plan, it will be recalled, was to complete state and interstate routes first in order to save motor vehicle revenues from the drain of excessive repair costs where roads are not built sufficiently strong in the first instance to sustain frequent and heavy traffic.

As to the wisdom of proceeding with increased activity on the original program, those in highway leadership assert that they are in line with President Hoover's engineering views on such matters. These views were expressed in one of his pre-election speeches at St. Louis and again on his recent visit to Cincinnati and Louisville in connection with waterway improvement. Tersely stated, it was the president's expressed judgment that trunk line waterways should be improved first, and highway officials in their recent conferences at San Antonio have again attested to the soundness of that principle as a means of conserving and making the safest possible use of highway construction capital.

Taking the country as a whole, the use of public highways is increasing at an amazing rate, likewise motor vehicle operating waste is increasing where highways have not yet been brought up to modern standards in construction. This situation may be taken as a lesson that not only should there be no let-up in road building, especially on routes that are heavily traveled, but that public work of this character should be intensified. It may be taken also as a reminder that there should be no evasion of the obligation due to motorists who have acquiesced in gasoline tax levies in the various states upon the assurance that the main traffic channels of the country would be pressed to completion as early as possible and thus take care of between 75 and 85 per cent of the country's traffic before attempting to stretch the Federal Aid principle beyond its present scope.

With the initiative which President Hoover is taking in all internal improvement matters, it is expected that highway building soon will be greatly increased and thereafter maintained at a speed that will insure not only sustained employment in that particular field, but great profit to the country.

Bo-Broadway

By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

Raymond Duncan, brother of the late lamented Isadora, is sorry he broke a 20-year exile in Paris to take a final squint at New York. He thinks he'd have been happier if he'd gone on cherishing old dreams.

Ray is 60 inches tall and slim as an outspoken clergyman's bank account. His long, black, greying hair is held back from his Indian profile by a strand of gold cord. Scoring trousers and other conventional clothes, he parades around in a toga, sandals and goose pimples.

Over in Paris he maintains open house for artists and thinkers. He came back to New York expecting to be welcomed with wide open arms by the intelligentsia, the arty ones. But even Society, which usually drags to its plant, bosom European percentages of all sorts and descriptions, has given Brother Duncan about treatment.

"Here I am lost," he says, "I have met nobody—no one at all. I keep open house, tea every afternoon, and no one calls. I want to talk with your great artist. Who is he? You have none. Your great poet? None. Your greatest writer? No."

A reporter visited Ray. "Have you no one," pleaded Isadora's brother, "to whom strangers here may turn?"

"No one," said the reporter, "but Grover Whalen."

GAMBLER'S BEADS

New necklaces of dice have made their appearance on Park avenue. They're called "gambler's beads." The dice are authentically marked. Some of them show figures similar to Continental poker dice. And the necklaces are so constructed that when occasion demands the "bones" may be detached and devoted to utilitarian purposes.

IT TAKES INTELLIGENCE

Police men able to "answer all inquiries" intelligently have been especially posted in the midtown section for the holidays, to assist visitors.

Courtesy Patrolman Newman at Fifth avenue and 22nd street had been on duty less than half an hour on his first day's assignment when a woman approached to ask whether he knew where the Equitable building is situated.

Newman told her. Then she said: "I wonder if you could tell me whether or not Mr. Weaver has an office there?"

TUNING UP

Sitting near the orchestra at Fritz Scheff's show (yes, I paid for my seat) I heard a young woman say to her partner, "But why must the orchestra always tune up its instruments every time it comes in? Even if the players have merely been out for a few minutes, they will go through all that noise and trouble again when they return. Surely, the instruments cannot have got very badly out of tune during those few minutes."

Well, I knew nothing of such things. But the young woman's observation set me thinking.

It is rather annoying to hear an orchestra tuning up, especially if you chance to be close, and if the cellist scrapes his bow over the strings slowly and torturingly.

When I was a boy there was a musical family on a neighboring farm. Musical, but not very. It was a very large family, and ten of the children played banjos, guitars, fiddles, mandolins, harmonicas and other excitable instruments. The ten of them used to play at last day of school entertainments, and the only consolation I had was that anyway it was the last day.

The family orchestra used to play at parties, too, and often used to drop in on the neighbors for a friendly and sociable evening.

Most of the time was spent in tuning up. I suppose some of the tuning was necessary, but the result couldn't have been any more inharmonious if the players had gone right ahead playing without tuning.

So many people I have known have spent most of their time tuning up. I know a man whose hair is snowy white. He has nothing in the world to do but take in money that flows to him from the estate his industrious father left him. He has as good an education as it's possible to get with money and brains. He is unusually intelligent, and knows what's going on, all over the world. But he's still tuning up to plan when he was twenty.

You know salesmen who are forever tuning up for a great bit of selling, and lazy-minded persons who have been for many years tuning up for a big reading program. I know a man who has been tuning up to learn Spanish for the last ten years, and he hasn't even learned to say chili con carne yet.

Real music is desirable, but tuning up shouldn't occupy too much time.

Taking of Federal Census Described as Vast Undertaking

By William M. Stewart
Director of the Census

(William Matt Stewart was born at Corpus Christi, Tex., Oct. 2, 1861. He is a graduate of Columbia (now George Washington) university. Admitted to the bar in 1884, he practiced law in the District of Columbia, Maryland and Detroit. In 1890 he became connected with the census of manufactures, becoming chief of the division in 1890, then chief statistician of manufactures, bureau of census, from 1902 to 1917. Assistant director of the census in 1919, he has been director since 1921. He is a Republican.)

Statistics covering population, agriculture, manufactures, employment and distribution, will be included in the coming decennial census, which will be a vast undertaking. It will be necessary to enumerate and to collect data for a population of more than 120,000,000, recording 25 or 30 items as to age, nativity, occupation, etc., of each individual; for more than 6,000,000 farms, gathering details as to acreage, value of farms, livestock, etc., for about 200,000 manufacturing establishments, with information as to the number of employees, value and quantity of products, horsepower, material used, etc., for about 20,000 mining enterprises, for approximately 2,500,000 establishments engaged in trade.

The next census will include close to 20,000 questions or items of information regarding individuals, farms and manufacturing, commercial and other enterprises. At the beginning of April next it will be necessary to have available 40,000,000 printed copies of various schedules of inquiries.

In addition to censuses of population, farms and manufacturing on periodic inquiries involving output, the bureau of census carries compilation and tabulation of data in regard to births, deaths, marriages, divorces, prisoners, financial transactions of states and cities, cotton ginning and current production of numerous commodities.

Approximately 99,000,000 cards were tabulated during the fiscal year 1929, the great bulk of which consisted of tabulations of births and deaths.

DISEASE ISN'T THE ONLY THING THAT'S CONTAGIOUS

How To Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

THERE was a time when traveling was an ordeal, even when done in luxurious fashion. More recently, however, manufacturers have been paying a great deal of attention to the details which make for comfort and pleasure enroute, and one can obtain the most charming travel accessories.

If you happen to number among your friends women who travel on business or for pleasure, or women who enjoy an occasional week-end in the country or a visit to another city, then the ideal manner in which to bring Christmas cheer is with some useful and beautiful traveling accessory.

Even the most careful, fastidious women find it difficult to keep themselves fresh looking on trains because of soot and dust. This is true even if the trip happens to be by motor car. The only way to meet this problem is to carry beauty preparations with you.

There is a perfectly charming journey kit, prepared by one of the beauty specialists who travels herself all the time, which contains a generous supply of all kinds of beauty preparations, a thorough cleansing cream, a good stimulant, a rich nourishing cream and special preparations for the eyes, hands and throat. There is even room for a nightgown and a toothbrush, when the journey is short and no other luggage is carried.

It is always quite a nuisance when packing to find just the right place for jars of cream, skin-toning lotion and make-up essentials. Since travel boxes and tourney kits contain everything, such a gift is practical as well as beautiful, and men too, like to have these to carry with them.

A compact manicure set is a serviceable and acceptable gift, even for those who confine their traveling to a day or two in the country.

Of course, sometimes women prefer gifts which are only beautiful—their usefulness receiving only secondary consideration—but every woman will concede that the ideal Christmas gift combines loveliness with utility.

Behind the Scenes In Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—New Yorkers think their burg has a monopoly on the bizarre and impossible.

That simply is because Manhattan chroniclers cackle so over every trifling event in their midst, assuming that it must be vitally important because it occurs on their picturesque little island.

In reality, more extraordinary things probably happen in and around Washington than anywhere else in the country. Or, if they do not actually happen here, our distinguished visitors bring the first news of them in to the capital. Only here we have a lot of genuinely consequential matters to occupy our minds with.

But if we cared to be frivolous—

For instance: Last year the District of Columbia's next door neighbor, Virginia, jumped out of the Democratic and into the Republican column on account of religion—whatever that may have to do with national politics.

But this year the Old Dominion state jumped back again and one of the determining issues was the inviting of Mrs. Oscar De Priest to tea at the White House.

A few nights ago Secretary of State Stimson entertained Dr. Juan B. Sacasa at dinner, which was quite proper, considering that Dr. Sacasa is Nicaragua's minister in Washington.

However, enemies of our form of government, like Bolsheviki, are not even allowed in this country.

And it isn't so long since U. S. marines and Nicaraguans were killing each other in the latter's native jungles because Dr. Sacasa, as a Bolshevik, was in arms against us.

Another batch of evidence has arrived here in support of the denial that Tom Mooney and Warren Billings had a thing to do with the San Francisco bomb throwing for which they are serving life terms in San Quentin.

It may seem superfluous, considering that the judge and all the surviving jurors who tried them also deny it, but it arrived anyway.

Engelbright, Curry, Kahn, Welch, Carter, Barbour, Free, Evans, Crail and Swing of California, all put together.

After a dozen strikers from a big textile plant had been fired out of their church at Marion (N.C.) for joining a labor union, the entire lot of them turned up there, some of their number crying real tears, begging the pastor (paid by their employers) to take them back again into communion.

This may be challenged as not a Washington event, but it came from A. F. of L. headquarters in the capital.

"And people wonder," said the A. F. of L. man who told me, "why we have so much trouble getting those textile workers effectively organized!"

Socialists who come to Washington with government business to transact occasionally complain that there is not now a single member of congress whose views are radical enough to sympathize with them, to whom they can apply for assistance, as they used to do to the late Representative Berger.

Yet Representative Fiorello H. LaGuardia is just back after suffering an exceptionally severe trouncing as Republican candidate for mayor of New York, due to the fact that so many conservative Republicans voted for Torman Thomas, the Socialist nominee, on the ground that LaGuardia was too red for them.

Today's Recipes

Cabbage and Apple Salad—Select good, tart, eating apples, peel, cut into small cubes, and mix with finely chopped cabbage. You may use equal proportions of apple and cabbage, more apple, or more cabbage. The cream-salad dressing is made as follows: as one-beat half-pint of thick whipping cream until stiff, add four and one-half tablespoons of fresh-grated horseradish, a grating of onion, a few drops of tobacco, and salt to taste. These seasonings can be changed according to individual preference, but be sure there is enough dressing in proportion to the cabbage and apple. Just a dash of cayenne pepper may be used if you do not have tabasco. If the horseradish is in vinegar, use only two tablespoons of lemon. Half a pint of cream makes enough dressing for about three cups of apples and cabbage, which will serve six people. Mix the cream dressing with the apples and cabbage. Serve on lettuce.

Chocolate Pudding—Two-thirds cup light brown sugar, one-third cup flour, two squares chocolate, melted, three cups milk, one-eighth teaspoon salt, two eggs, well beaten, one teaspoon butter, one teaspoon vanilla, one-third cup nuts (these can be omitted). Thoroughly blend the sugar and flour. Add the chocolate and milk and cook in double boiler until thick and creamy. Stir frequently. Add the eggs and butter and cook for three minutes. Add the rest of the ingredients. Cool and chill.

Suggestions

Buttered Bread Crumbs

Dry bread should be used for buttered bread crumbs, ground not too fine in a food chopper. To each cup of crumbs allow one tablespoon of butter. Melt the butter over a slow flame and stir in the crumbs, stirring constantly until the fat is well distributed through the crumbs.

Cheese Mush

A little milk added to the water for making cornmeal mush is an improvement. After meal has been stirred in, add as much cheese as liked, cut up fine, and cook until done. This is good fried or eaten hot with butter.

FISH IS REASONABLY PRICED—HEALTHFUL

PLANKED WHITEFISH

(Mrs. Mary Morton's Daily Tested Recipe)—Whitefish, butter, salt and pepper, lemon, parsley. Clean and split the fish. Place it skin side down on a well-buttered plank. Sprinkle with salt and pepper and brush with melted butter. Bake in a hot oven for twenty-five minutes. Remove, spread with butter, garnish with parsley, and send to the table on the plank.

Diet and Health

By LULU HUNT PETERS, M. D.

Author of "Diet and Health" and "Diet for Children"

Mr. B.—Dermographia sometimes, called dermatographism, is a symptom and not a disease. Therefore no one could say that a person had the disease dermatographia. As you can see from the derivation of the word—derma: skin; graphia: to write—it means writing on the skin.

The condition is manifested in no other disease than hives, so far as I know, although in some obscure nervous disease possibly caused by endocrine disturbances, a red mark may follow a slight scratch on the skin which ordinarily wouldn't leave a mark.

The word dermatographia is not used frequently because it is not a common condition. I did write about this in the column some time ago.

Hives, or urticaria, is a disease which is not thoroughly understood although it is very common. It is usually caused by certain foods. It is believed that the protein molecule of the foods is not digested correctly, and absorbed in this unprepared state, irritates the blood vessels so that the serum escapes too rapidly, causing the weals and marks, when scratching is indulged in. This, in turn, also causes the irritation to the terminal nerves, causing the itching. Those who suffer in this manner are said to have an idiosyncrasy to the food (also called an allergy). This idiosyncrasy may sometimes be caused by old ulcer scars in the stomach or intestine and gall bladder, or appendix disturbances.

The protein skin tests that I have spoken of are given to see if the offending protein can be found. It is true, as you have experienced, that sometimes these tests do not disclose the offending protein, perhaps because an insufficient number had been given; or it may be that they might not disclose it because it was an excess of a protein taken rather than the protein per se, that caused the trouble.

Aren't you a little harsh, Mr. B. In saying that I am intimidating a woman because I tell her that from her symptoms I judge she may have hives which may be due to a food sensitization? Naturally, I cannot make a diagnosis; I simply judge from the letter, and I write on these in the column if they happen to be subjects of general interest—always, of course, advising the writers that they must see their physician for diagnosis and treatment. I assure you that my sole object is to be helpful, and all of my time is devoted to this work. I am not doing any private practice, although I am a licensed physician and could practice—and could have an enormous practice, by the way—because I do give all my time to study and to keeping up with my profession for this one work of public health education.

We have an article on Hives which you may have by following column rules.

"Dear Doctor: I have a terrible itching in the back of my throat. Some days my nose itches also. I sneeze now and then, but mostly when I get up in the morning. No discharge of any kind from my nose or throat. I have had this annoying itching for the last six months. I also have terrible headaches. R.

Consult a nose and throat specialist, R. There may be some local inflammation or scar tissue that is causing your nerves to be irritated. You should also have a complete physical examination, including that of your eyes, to discover the cause of the headaches. A headache is a symptom of something wrong somewhere, not necessarily in the head.

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I am 17 years old, and ever since I was 11 I have been going with a boy that is only one day older than I am. I really loved this boy and he said he loved me. We vowed we would be true to each other as long as we lived.

"I had been going to school and only had one year more to go in high school, but I went the way of many girls, Virginia, I loved 'net wisely, but too well,' and the result is that I am working and trying to take care of my four-months-old baby.

"The boy is going to school. He promised to marry me long before my baby came, but he hasn't done so yet. He has given me money to buy things for the baby, but he never comes to see me. He says he wants to finish school so as to get a better job. Don't you think if he really cared he would come to see us sometimes? Would you put any faith in his promise to marry me?"

"I have met a very nice boy who says and acts as if he loves me. But Virginia, I don't LOVE him. I love the other one, although he isn't so good to me.

"Shall I marry the one who is nice to me, or wait for the one I love? Please advise me, for I am sadly in need of advice. I have no mother to turn to.

SAD, LONELY ME."

"I'm afraid your little faith is to be put in the boy's promises to marry. Has he parents living? They should be consulted about the baby, and should help support it, as he is a minor.

Going through a legal ceremony with him would legalize the baby, and perhaps that would be best, and you may be able to go through with it if his parents will help you. They should also help him to finish school as it is true that he will be able to earn more money if he has an education.

Don't marry the other boy—at least not yet—loving the first. If you cannot marry your baby's father, try to take care of him for awhile by yourself. Possibly you will forget the first boy and grow to care for someone else who will make a good home for you and the baby.

MRS. W.: Thank you so much for your very kind letter. Best of wishes for you and your fine family.

Peter's Adventures

By MRS. FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

PETER STEPS RIGHT INTO TROUBLE

Peter glancing at Holy Man of Beetle Land, thought that he looked decidedly ugly for holy man, and privately decided that he wasn't really praying at all, but just holding his claws in that position because he wanted to. But then the boy thought of what Biffer had told him, and concluded to keep his opinions to himself. He looked back after they had gone some distance and saw that Holy Man was still standing in the same position that they had first seen him.

Biffer was too excited to walk sedately and kept running ahead of Peter and then back again to tell the boy something that he had seen. But the path was a winding one, and at last Biffer turned around a corner and was lost entirely to view. The boy hurried after him and overtook him before long, but Biffer had gone mad. Biffer was jumping up and down and clapping his claws and chanting something that sounds like, "Ya, ya, ya; he, he, he; hy, hy, hy." When he saw Peter he beckoned.

Just as Peter reached the little beetle he felt a sharp pain in his foot, and then suddenly it seemed as if something had hold of him and was trying to pull him into the ground. He clutched a clump of grass that grew high above his head and hung on with all his might while he screamed for aid.

"Help me, Biffer, quickly. I'm afraid I am going to lose my foot. Something is dragging me into a hole and I don't know what it is."

Biffer rushed up at his cry and knew in an instant what had happened.

"Hey there, Tiger, leave go of that foot," he cried bending down and shouting into what Peter saw plainly for the first time was indeed a hole in the ground. "I am Biffer the Gun-Beetle, and you have trapped a friend of mine. If you don't let him go I will smother you with a gas attack."

Whatever it was who had grabbed the boy evidently knew that Biffer would make good his threat, for it let go of him so quickly that he was taken off his guard and fell head over heels into the soft, oozy grass clump that he had been hanging on to.

Possibility of an Army-Navy game next season has been discussed pro and con but in all the debates one factor has been overlooked. One writer points out that this factor happens to concern the boys who are playing the game.

As an illustration, the Army has already completed its schedule for 1930 and this schedule is about all that anyone can ask of a team. In this modern age football schedules have to be arranged at least one, possibly two and even three years ahead.

The Navy also has about completed a schedule that will keep its men hard at work from October to December. One scribe explains the situation this way:

"A football team having only so many reserves can play only a certain number of hard games without forcing the players beyond a health limit. For example, next fall the Army again meets Notre Dame on the last Saturday in November. It would be criminal to schedule another game just one week later. It would be equally criminal to force Navy players into such a contest after a season that had taken a heavy toll.

"Modern football is no May Day party. There are a few teams with enough reserve strength to play six or seven hard games. But there are few of these. Others try to play through such a season, only to find their teams broken and stale, with the nerve systems exhausted. This helps to account for so many of the so-called upsets. For this reason a team may be two or three touchdowns weaker one Saturday than it was the Saturday before.

"Such a contest as the Army-Navy game cannot be forced upon two football teams whose hard schedules have already been arranged. It would be more than the players could face without suffering serious effects.

"This is one detail no politician has yet considered. If left to many of them, they would have both teams playing hard games all year long. The Army and Navy would be forced into action next fall might wait just a minute or two and consider a factor that has been given little consideration—the young man out there on the field taking the punishment."

Assailing the famous report of the Carnegie Foundation, Dr. Tully, president of the College of the Pacific at Stockton, Calif., recently declared in an address that "America needs football because it strengthens the national backbone."

"Football, he said, teaches a valuable lesson 'hold on to the ball.' Rugby failed, he added, because it taught a lesson already known—get rid of the ball or in other words 'pass the buck.'"

Dr. Knoles declared the Carnegie belief was not published until after the West had established itself as the football leader of the country.

"As the oldest living quarterback from the University of Southern California I have nothing but four stars to show for four years of effort on a Trojan gridiron—let the Carnegie Foundation make the most of it."

Howard Elmhick, lean and lanky right-handed pitcher for the Philadelphia Athletics, who surprised the baseball world by his remarkable performance against the Chicago Cubs in the first game of the last world series, has reconsidered a previous intimation that he might retire from baseball and admits that he will again be with the world champions next year. The towering pitcher plans, however, to devote considerable time to the coaching of young pitchers but will be prepared to take a turn in the box whenever called upon.

Personalities IN SPORT

Jimmy Phelan, coach of Purdue's Big Ten championship team, came to the Hoosier school eight years ago. Basketball was the big sport or the Bollermakers then. They wanted to amount to something in football, too, and Jimmy moved to put them out in front if only a little time.

In 1922, Phelan's first year at Purdue, his team won only one game while losing five and tying one. The following year the record was two games won, five lost and one tied. In 1924 they made a record of five games won and two lost. Three games were won, four lost and one tied in 1925. In 1926, six games won, two lost and one tied. The next year they won six games while losing two. Last year the eleven won five times, lost twice and was tied once.

Wildcats Run Wild Against Forlorn Blue And White Team Which Contributed Ninth Defeat To Xenia In Ten Game Schedule

By PHIL FRAME
SPRINGFIELD HIGH SCHOOL put the finishing touch on the most disappointing football season experienced by Xenia Central High since 1924 when the Wildcats clawed their way to a 41 to 9 victory over the Bucs on a half-frozen gridiron at Wittenberg College stadium in the annual Thanksgiving Day classic between the rival schools Thursday morning.

Springfield simply summoned too much power for the Bucs. Crossing the frost-bitten Xenia goal line in every quarter, the Wildcats never looked like losers. Among the 500 shivering fans who watched the one-sided struggle a few of the Xenia faithful whose hopes had been buoyed up by the improved showing of the Bucs the week before, went home with splitting headaches.

The defeat forged the ninth link in Xenia's chain of consecutive defeats and officially terminated a season which was productive of only one victory, a 7 to 0 triumph over the O. S. and S. O. Home in the season's inaugural game.

Thanks to Joe Smittle, who ended his high school gridiron career in a blaze of glory, the Bucs were unable to cross the Wildcat goal line once and also add two points on a safety.

Joe was a whole team himself and played an outstanding role in the Buccaneer offense and defense.

"Modern football is no May Day party. There are a few teams with enough reserve strength to play six or seven hard games. But there are few of these. Others try to play through such a season, only to find their teams broken and stale, with the nerve systems exhausted. This helps to account for so many of the so-called upsets. PIQUA WINS MIAMI VALLEY LEAGUE TITLE

With a record of five straight league victories and no defeats or ties, Piqua High School is the 1929 football champion of the Miami Valley League.

The Indians won the title Thursday by defeating Troy High, 21 to 6. Previous to their title contest, neither team had lost a league game.

In the other league contest played Thanksgiving Day, Greenville and Sidney played a 6 to 6 tie on a snow-covered gridiron at Sidney in a battle for fourth place in the standing. Sidney wound up in fourth position with Greenville fifth.

Piqua, league champions, had an impressive scoring record for the season, rolling up 145 points against twelve for its league opponents.

Greenville scored only eighteen points, less than any other league team, since Xenia tallied twenty-four, but the Bucs had the poorest defensive record. A total of 124 points was scored against Xenia. Final league standing follows:

Team	W	L	Tie	Pt	P. O.P.
Piqua	5	0	0	100	145
Troy	4	1	0	80	73
Miamisburg	2	2	1	50	39
Sidney	2	2	2	33	40

Michigan has its Brown Jug back, Purdue its Old Oaken Bucket and a lot of other alumni have headaches.

After winning the jug from Minnesota this season the Michigan boys looked into it and found it was empty. So it was a hollow victory.

Cable from England says the Oldham Athletics are leading a major British soccer league. Which explains what has become of Connie Mack.

University of Mexico's football coach, Reggie Root, returns to United States. Maybe he was afraid they would run him for president.

This fellow Devens of Harvard may be a whale of a baseball pitcher some day, they say, but what Yale would like to forget is that he isn't a bad footballer, either.

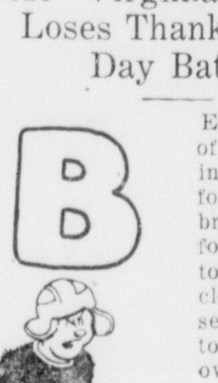

ACCOUNTANT FOUND DEAD IN CISTERN

GALION, O., Nov. 29.—John T. Stark, 40, an accountant, was found dead at the bottom of a cistern at 3 o'clock this morning by local police, who had been summoned by the man's wife who became alarmed when she missed him from his bed.

Stark was attired in a night gown and slippers when he was found. He may have walked in his sleep.

CAPTURES VICTORY OVER MOUNTAINEERS AT COLUMBUS 14-0

West Virginia State Loses Thanksgiving Day Battle

BEFORE a crowd of 7,000 shivering fans Wilberforce University brought its 1929 football season to a triumphant close with a sensational 14 to 0 victory over the hitherto unbeaten West Virginia State College.

eleven in their annual Thanksgiving Day classic, flavored by the traditional rivalry between the two schools, at Nell Park, Columbus.

It was the seventeenth annual meeting between the two teams and Wilberforce, with an eleven which ranks with the best in the school's history, forward passed its way to a notable victory against a team which prior to Thursday was unbeaten and untied within colored collegiate football ranks this season.

West Virginia also held a victory over Bluefield Institute, last season's national champions, marking Bluefield's first defeat in three years of competition.

A tie at the hands of Bluefield and a 7 to 0 defeat administered by Tuskegee Institute deprived Wilberforce of the mythical colored football championship of the country this season but the spectacular victory over West Virginia Thursday gave the Blue and Gold gridders the mid-west football crown.

Outclassing the highly-touted State eleven in every department of play, Wilberforce, with a backfield that executed intricate plays to perfection and an aerial game which was an important factor in the scoring of its touchdowns, looked like winners from the start. The play was almost entirely in State's territory.

The first Wilberforce marker came in the second quarter climaxing a fifty-yard march when Tynes carried the ball over and Moore place-kicked the extra point.

In the third period Moore, dashed back to a point fifteen yards behind his own forward wall, tossed a long pass into the arms of Fowler, fleet end, who caught the ball on the run. The pass traveled fifty yards in the air over the heads of the State secondary defense and Fowler reeled off the remaining yardage to the goal line without interference. Moore's toe accounted once more for the added point.

Statistics will have you believe that Wilberforce registered eleven first downs to two for State, a convincing indication of the superiority of the Bulldogs. Wilberforce gained 281 yards by rushing the ball to six yards for State, completed six out of fifteen passes for a total of 125 yards, while State's ten passes were either incomplete or intercepted.

Outstanding for Wilberforce was the play of Moore and Tynes in the backfield. Moore proved a real triple-threat player, kicking, passing and running with the ball. Tynes, Wilberforce's candidate for All-American this season, thrust off tackles and around the ends for substantial gains and could not be stopped. He ripped State's line to shreds.

It is a remarkable fact that against the Wilberforce line, which is equal to the best in the country, the strong State eleven was able to gain only six yards.

Snow flurries with near-zero weather failed to dampen the play of the many fans who stayed to the end. Summary:

ALLEGED SLAYER IS HELD IN DETROIT

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Nov. 29.—Logan County authorities are here today seeking extradition papers from Governor Conley, for the return of Peter Kinder, who is now in custody in Detroit, and who is wanted for the alleged murder of Joe Gore, a mine guard, at Blair, W. Va., in 1921.

Kinder was arrested on complaint of his son-in-law, Elliot Pauley, who told Detroit police that his father-in-law had threatened to kill him.

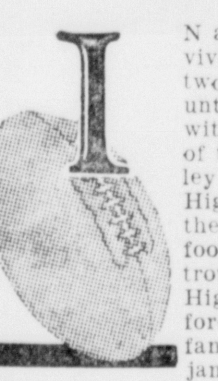

The man denied the son-in-law's charges, but admitted to police, they say, that he had killed the mine guard.

Kinder was living at River Rouge, a Detroit suburb, under the assumed name of John A. Atkins.

PIQUA WINS MIA MI VALLEY LOOP TITLE DEFEATING TROY 21 TO 6

N a battle for survival between the two unbeaten and untied teams within the ranks of the Miami Valley League, Piqua High School won the 1929 league football title by trouncing Troy High, 21 to 6 before 5,000 thrilled fans on the Trojan gridiron Thanksgiving afternoon.

Ability to take advantage of so-called breaks in their favor enabled Piqua to score two touchdowns in the second quarter after a scoreless first period.

A punt blocked by Ramsey, Piqua center, early in the second period gave Piqua the ball on Troy's twenty-five. The marker came on two plays, one a drive by Captain Cron through the line followed by a sweeping end run by Cromer. Neth drove-kicked the extra point.

Later in the quarter Piqua punted, the ball being downed on Troy's two-yard line by a Piqua player. The referee ruled the bounding ball had touched Osley, Troy safety man and Piqua was given the ball. On a drive through the line Neth accounted for the second touchdown and again drove-kicked the extra point.

The third Piqua touchdown came in the fourth period and ended a sustained drive down the field with Captain Cron carrying the ball over the goal line. For the third time Neth's toe added the point.

Troy's touchdown in the third quarter came on the longest run of the game when Hoover, halfback, caught a punt on his own forty-five yard line and aided by fine interference ran fifty-five yards for a score.

The large crowd which witnessed the championship game was thrilled time and again by the dazzling open field running of Captain Cron. For Troy, R. Scott played a wonderful game at tackle, breaking through to smear many plays despite the fact his opponent on the line heavily outweighed him.

Prior to their title tilt Thursday neither team had been beaten or tied in four league games. The victory gave Piqua revenge for the surprise defeat administered by Troy in their Turkey Day battle last season. Lineups:

LOSES RIGHT EYE

CONSTABLE KILLED EFFECTING ARREST

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Nov. 29.—Two men, one of them a constable, are dead today as the result of a gun battle which climaxed the constable's attempt to arrest two men, who were said to have been under the influence of liquor.

The strife occurred on the streets of Crum, a small Wayne County village.

Joe Simpkins, the constable, shot and killed Wayne Galloway, 37, one of the alleged drunks, before the officer fell to the street mortally wounded.

Peeling at Crum was reported to be tense as it was said the two men were just "plain drunk" and going no harm. The second drunken man escaped.

FOR THANKSGIVING DAY UNION PROGRAM

The annual Thanksgiving services were held at the Zion Baptist Church, Thursday morning at 11 o'clock with a large number of representatives with their pastors from the following churches: First A. M. E., the Rev. S. A. Amos, pastor; Third Baptist, the Rev. A. M. Howe, pastor; St. John's A. M. E. Church, the Rev. A. R. Fox, pastor; Main St. Christian Church, the Rev. O. H. McGowan, pastor; Middletown Church, pastor out of city.

The Rev. S. A. Amos, secretary of the Ministers Alliance, was master of ceremonies. The opening hymn was by the Main St. Christian Church choir; scripture lesson, the Rev. A. M. Howe; hymn, choir; prayer, the Rev. A. R. Fox; the speaker of the hour, the Rev. O. H. McGowan, pastor of the Main St. Christian Church.

The thought that the speaker based his remarks from was taken from first Thess. fifth chapter and eighteenth verse: "In everything give thanks for this is the will of God in Christ Jesus concerning you."

He said we are not expected to give thanks for everything. The text read "In everything give thanks." "One must have a broad vision that sees beyond the limits of our own blessings. We should be thankful that we live in a land of Bibles—when we think of the land where the Bible is not known. The word 'thanks' is one of the biggest words in the English language. It touches almost every faculty in man. David asks 'What shall I render unto God for all His benefits,' and decided 'I will offer the sacrifice of thanksgiving. It is a good thing to give thanks unto the Lord for it will fit us for Heaven. Here is the training school. Thanksgiving Day is the most characteristic of our national holidays and the most predominantly religious of all our national celebrations. The day has retained to a marked degree its original lustre. It is a long march from that bleak December of 1621 to 1929. The soft music of that day has been increasing with the years until today it is the organ note of Hallelujah choruses. We have not time to linger by the milestones but name them and let them speak for themselves. Let us thank God for the church and the vision of its leaders and especially the progress it has made on this North American continent. May it help to answer the prayer Christ prayed in that He said that we all may be one as He and the Father were one. Let us thank God for our salvation, for a home here and the promise of a home over there when this life is over."

Mr. and Mrs. James Harris E. Second St., in company with Mrs. James Roberts attended the funeral service of Mr. Harvey Moore, at Springfield, Wednesday.

Mrs. Ella Ewing, 1127 E. Second St., passed away at her home Wednesday evening at about 10 o'clock. She had been ill about six months, suffering from dropsy. TO RELEASE RIGHTS

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 2.—Oil and gas rights on a section of the Rosville state brick plant, Rosville, will be released soon by the state department of public welfare, according to an announcement by Hal H. Griswold, director of the department.

The section to be released is not being used in the prison brick making industry, it was explained.

Although not a professional explorer, Robert T. Moore, zoology professor at the California Institute of Technology, holds the distinction of being the first man to attain the summit of Mt. Sangay, 17,500-foot volcano, in Ecuador. A whole month of climbing was required for Professor Moore to reach the top. His wife accompanied him as high as 17,000 feet. Later he ascended Mt. Chimborazo, 20,000 feet, which has been climbed once, in 1880. Above Professor and Mrs. Moore snapped upon their return to Los Angeles.

CHARACTER THE ONLY CURE FOR CRIME

Judge Leon McCord who for twelve years has been committing men and women to penal institutions insists that the only cure is that of changing the character of the individuals going wrong. He says, "Character is not inherited; it does not come by descent or distribution. With wealth, talent, station, do not develop character. In all cases, and under every sun, character is the fruit of personal exertion and personal endeavor."

"If you read good, clean books, if you keep good company, in a little while you will learn to love both. Then it is that you begin to build for yourself a character, without which you need not expect to succeed. Put a pin in this: If you lack character, then you have nothing the world needs or wants."

You may have good looks, you may have a good father who stands high in the community, and you may have prestige, so did Absalom. You propose to make your way by fooling the world; so did Absalom. You are going to be so cunning that you will not be found out. Absalom tried this. You are going to be a good fellow and slap men on the back and shirk work, and live by your wits. Absalom tried this also. You may lose friends and fortune, lose your way and breast the streams of life in threadbare garb, but if character bears you company, certain it is that she will lead you again to the highway of happiness and peace."

A RADIO SERMON NOT SUFFICIENT

Dr. Charles R. Brown, former dean of Yale Divinity school, says, "The difference between listening to a radio sermon and going to church is the same as the difference between calling a girl on the telephone and spending the evening with her."

"Most persons who tune in on radio sermons are religious quitters; doubtless some of them think they are doing God a favor by listening in, but they are of no positive good in the community."

"The Bible does not say that God so loved the world that he telephoned down the good news. He sent his only begotten son to die." Why not accept the invitation and COME TO CHURCH NEXT SUNDAY?—D. Carl Yoder.

Creamed Comments
On S.S. Lesson

This discourse was delivered on Tuesday preceding Christ's crucifixion. Because of Jesus' entry, the hatred of his religious enemies became intense; but his teaching lost none of its sharpness and pungency because of hostility; he spoke the truth that was needed then and now at the cost of death.

V. 31. "But when the Son of man shall come in his glory, and all the holy angels with him, then shall he sit on the throne of his glory." The Saviour will be judge at the last day, speaking with authority with all heaven as his witnesses.

V. 32. "And before him shall be gathered all nations; and he shall separate them one from another, as the shepherd separates the sheep from the goats." The "all nations" means all people of all time; separation from God and from those counted dear in this world ought to help us live soberly and righteously in this life.

Vs. 34, 35, 36. "Then shall the King say unto them on his right hand, come ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundations of the world; for I was thirsty and ye gave me to eat; I was thirsty and ye gave me drink; I was a stranger and ye took me in..." Those who have accepted the invitation "Come" on earth will hear it again at the judgment day. When one has lived his best he does not merit what is promised in the world to come, hence the use of the word inherit. The pronouncement of divine acceptance is based on the unconscious doing of deeds for others as a natural expression of the soul, as indicated in the next three verses.

Jesus knew what it was to be hungry, thirsty, lonely and in need of clothing, heart-sick, treated as a prisoner. The spirit of Christ in a man helps him to sense quickly all needs of others and to supply them to the extent of his ability and forgetting that he did any good thing.

V. 40. "And the King shall answer and say unto them, verily I say unto you, inasmuch as ye did it unto one of these my brethren, even these least, ye did it unto me." We fail to see things as they are; we forget that in some mysterious way Christ identifies himself with every true child of his.

so that we are unconsciously serving him when we serve those he loves, even though they be of another color, race or creed.

Vs. 41, 42, 43. "Then shall he say unto them on the left hand, depart from me, ye cursed, into the eternal fire which is prepared for the devil and his angels; for I was hungry and yet did not give me to eat..." It will be one's record that the judge will present so that really the wrongdoer will be called to accept the result of his own doings. Note that these denounced may be those not counted bad folks in the world, not guilty of crimes under our form of government but guilty of failure to perform imperative duties for the welfare of others.

V. 40. "And those shall go away into eternal punishment; but the righteous to life eternal." If a man will not repent here it is not likely he would repent later. The Old Testament's burning message was to repent. It is the big word in the New Testament; it was the theme of the messages of Christ, of John the Baptist, of Peter on the day of Pentecost.

Discussion Questions on S.S. Lesson

1. How reconcile the punishment of the wicked with God's love?
2. What evidences are there that God's judgment is now operative?
3. What effect has the consciousness of one's goodness on the real merit of character?
4. What will be the principle of separation in the day of judgment?
5. How can we be good neighbors?
6. What modern inventions have multiplied our neighbors and what is their effect on moral obligations to others?

Clericus says, "Every deed instantly crystallizes into destiny, drops into the soul a seed that will bear its final fruit on the day of judgment. We are every day in our most common acts of service and sympathy, kindness and courtesy, building for the soul a house beautiful that will be its eternal home. No good deed of ours is ever lost, but is stored up for us against that day."

Lesson Prayer, "Help us realize the fact and meaning of the great judgment day where we shall appear with our real record and our true self as it was lived on earth."

HOW HOLD YOUNG PEOPLE FOR THE CHURCH SERVICE? Dr. Harry Noble Wilson has solved the problem to some degree by making the church service particularly attractive to young people. Each Sunday evening he gets from the young people questions they would like to have answered and in addition preaches on a text suggested by the young people. As a result his sermons are varied and interesting. When the church and its minister prove to youth that they are sincerely interested in them and anxious to respond to their needs, they will find youth responding. Not only will an increased attendance result but there will be a development of real Christian leaders among the young men and women.

A MANSION OR A SHACK

Mrs. Smith, a wealthy member of a leading city church, died and with considerable questioning was allowed to pass through the pearly gates, so the story goes. She asked St. Peter to conduct her to the promised mansion.

In passing beautiful places she inquired who occupied them. "Mrs. Murphy lives in that house," said St. Peter. "She came from your city." "Why, yes," replied Mrs. Smith. "She used to be my landlady." "And in that attractive place lives Sundry McDonald, another resident of your city." "Is that so?" she replied. "He used to be my gardener."

"And over there in that neat palace, lives Rose Wilson, a very sweet girl." "Is it possible, why she used to be my maid," responded the lady.

Soon they came to a shack and St. Peter said, "This is your mansion." "But-but," stammered the lady, "how does it happen that my former servants have so much better places than I?" St. Peter replied "It's this way, Mrs. Smith, all the material we can use to build the mansions is what you people send up here, and that is all you sent."—D. Carl Yoder.

TON-LITTERS THAN EVER THIS SEASON

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 29.—Ninety-three litters of Ohio pigs, this season attained a weight of one ton or more to the litter, when they were six months old. Records of the litters were kept in connection with the seventh year of the Ohio Ton-Litter project sponsored by the agricultural extension service of the Ohio State University here. The number is almost double the number of successful litters in previous years. For eight litters in 1928 was the previous record.

The litters were from the herds of seventy different swine growers in twenty-seven counties of the state. Two men had four ton-litters each in their herds and four men had three each. Forty-nine of this year's Ton-Litter Club members have never been members of the club before. The seventy members are the successful aspirants among nearly 300 hog-owners who enrolled for the project. The Ohio Ton-Litter Club now has 227 members.

Average number of pigs in each litter was 10.2 and the average weight of the litters was 2206 pounds. Both averages compare very favorably with those of previous years. There were no phenomenally high weights. Growers enrolled in the project are urged to sell their pigs when the most profitable point in their feeding has been reached after they have passed the 2,000 pound mark, since there is no advantage in putting in additional feed without profit in order to make a record for poundage which may prove expensive.

"The Ton-Litter project is not a contest and no prizes are offered for the heaviest litters. The idea of the project is to show the swine growers the profit and advantage of large litters of the right type pigs, well raised under sanitary conditions, and properly fed," says J. W. Wuchet, extension specialist in swine growing, who is in charge of the project. "This means that the application of these practices to the largest number of litters in the largest number of herds is the measure of the success of the project from the standpoint of the swine growers."

Wuchet believes that the large number of litters this year is due to two factors. One is the interest which has been shown and the large number of entries made, by vocational agriculture students in the high schools of the state. The other is the spreading knowledge and practice of the efficient methods of pork production.

Among the twenty-seven counties successfully producing ton-litters this year, Fairfield County leads with 27. The same county was in the lead last year. Richland County, with eleven litters, is in second place this year.

liver was out of order and I was bothered by bilious attacks. My food did not digest as it should and I coughed up bits of partly digested food.

"I had heard and read so much about Konjola that I decided to give it a trial. Right from the start I got wonderful results. My kidney troubles disappeared. My liver, too, is in much better condition. Gone are the dizzy spells and the bilious attacks. My appetite is much better and I can eat anything I choose without suffering. I am glad to recommend Konjola and feel sure that this new medicine will give others equally good results."

Konjola is a new and different medicine of thirty-two ingredients, 22 of them the juices of roots and herbs long known for their medicinal value. Konjola works quickly and thoroughly at the very root, the point of the ills of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, and of rheumatism, neuritis and nervousness. Konjola is not designed to give mere temporary relief, but to bring new, glorious and lasting health.

Reasons For Democratic Landslide In Indiana Not Easily Accounted For.

GEORGE V. COFFIN
(Editor's Note: This is the second of a series of first-hand articles on the Indiana political upheaval. Others follow.)

By BONITA WITT
Central Press Staff Writer
INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 29.—Hoosierdom once again is front page news! The recent Democratic landslide which gave the party of Jefferson majority victories in 60 per cent of the Indiana cities is political history.

Throughout the nation political leaders are trying to piece together a logical explanation of the Democratic inroads into the stronghold of Republicanism and to learn of its national significance.

Indianapolis Typical
Reginald Sullivan's victory in Indianapolis is typical of others throughout the state. He scored a two to one win over his Republican opponent, Alfred N. Glossbrenner and carried six councilmen with him in a city which normally is Republican by a 30,000 majority.

One doesn't get a clear conception of the real reasons for the landslide by visiting Republican headquarters. County Chairman Omer Hawkins pondered the question, then countered, "We wish someone could tell what happened. We can't account for it."

A half dozen or more ward and precinct leaders who sat discussing the election in his office were alike bewildered by the Sullivan victory. "The upheaval was not only confined to Indiana," he continued, "it was nationwide. 'Coffinism' as the leadership of George V. Coffin, who has been in power since 1924, is called. A lot of people in Indianapolis are against 'Cap' because they can't run him. Consequently they raised the cry of 'Coffinism' to confuse the voters. To me it seems the landslide was a combination of many things. Don't you think it possible that the tremendous crash of stock market values had its effect on the voting public? Unemployment also has made the people anxious for a change. They think the Republicans are responsible for unemployment so they voted against our man. Failure of the party in Washington to hold its men in line also has had its effect throughout the country. It isn't only Indiana that has been turned topsy-turvy—the whole country has been upset—but the present state of affairs is not permanent."

Dissatisfaction With Klan
Alvah J. Rucker, prominent Republican attorney, who helped draw up impeachment proceedings against Mayor John Duvall, characterized the Democratic victory as the culmination of years of dissatisfaction with Klan controlled Republicanism. Duvall, El Jackson and "Coffinism," Times were ripe for a change," he says, "and the Republicans, eager to get rid of Coffin, joined with the Democrats to defeat Glossbrenner who had the backing of Coffin."

Reginald Sullivan, bachelor mayor-elect has been prominent in Democratic circles for years and once held the office of state senator. His father, Thomas L. Sullivan, 83, has served twice as mayor of Indianapolis. He first was elected forty years ago.

With three score years of political observation behind him he sees nothing unusual in the present election. "Things like this happen in cycles," he says. "One party gets into power and things go along smoothly, then they put weak men in office, the voters become dissatisfied with the corruption, put them out of office and the story again repeats itself."

Labor Played a Part
Labor also played an important part in the past campaign. Glossbrenner was an advocate of the open shop. The working men voted against him and also the employers who had no inclination to antagonize their men.

Those who wanted to see the manager plan go into effect supported Sullivan for mayor because he had been actively associated with the manager plan movement. Some observers characterize the vote as negative, declaring the Democrats and Republicans who broke party lines voted not for Sullivan but against the Republicans. They defend the regime of Coffin and deny charges of corruption that have been hurled at him. One Indianapolis newspaper on the day before election printed a front page editorial demanding the end of Coffinism and decrying his capture of the organization and machinery of the Republican party in 1924 with the aid of D. C. Stephenson, then grand dragon of the Klan. He also was blamed for the shortcomings of the present school board whose administration has been criticized severely.

When the votes were counted Coffin announced his retirement from active party leadership, declaring himself to be a sick man and tired of the strain of the job. Party followers, however, look for an internal struggle which again may see Coffin assume the reins of leadership.

Meanwhile Indianapolis in its homes and on the street corners is trying to analyze one of the most unusual elections in its history.

INSURANCE POLICY CHANGE ORDERED BY OFFICIAL OF STATE

COLUMBUS, Nov. 29.—On and after July 1, 1930, every legal reserve life insurance policy there-after written in Ohio, which carries with it total and permanent disability benefits, must embrace the uniform provisions for total and permanent disability benefits which were adopted by the National Association of Insurance Commissioners at its meeting in Toronto in September, according to an order issued by Judge G. S. Younger, state superintendent of insurance.

Judge Younger has sent a letter to every legal reserve life insurance company in Ohio, stating that on and after July 1st, next, the department will approve only such total and permanent disability classes as contain in substance the uniform provisions.

Approval of all disability clauses filed in connection with legal reserve life insurance policies will be withdrawn, June 30, 1930. A joint committee of state and company actuaries, of which Walter A. Robinson, actuary of the Ohio Insurance Department, was a member, prepared the new uniform provisions.

Judge Younger said that the effect of the ruling will be that all legal reserve life insurance policies hereafter written in Ohio, which provide for total and permanent disability benefits, will, in effect, be identical. Previously there has been a wide variance among the disability provisions of legal reserve life insurance policies, and the new ruling will make these provisions uniform.

The Theater

This column, the other day, revealed the modest denouement of Martin Flavin, the playwright, who, although he has three current successes on Broadway, is almost unknown outside the stage fraternity. It may be interesting therefore, to repeat today a review by David P. Sontner of one of his plays: Someday there may be a memorial shaft to the Unknown Dishwasher, immortalizing those unending and unmeddled domestic solers in the kitchen trenches. "With or without this beautiful thought in mind, 'Broken Dishes,' by Martin Flavin, is dedicated to the man who wears the apron.

"I am of the suspicion that there are three or four such kitchen forms for every man-about-town or broad city highways, and four or five such knights of the dishrag for every wife-beater.

"And it is not at all improbable that a statistical survey of the men behind the dishpan would reveal an appalling loss in china-ware."

"The pieces, if laid out to light, might reach from the cradle to the grave and take 700 riveters using their hands 204 days to equal if even a similar amount of dishes annihilated, if they understood such a word."

"Donald Meed plays the role of Mrs. Bumpstead, the putter-box a husband.

"The mother goes to the movies with her two eldest daughters, Ethel and Elaine, his youngest daughter, do the mopping up. But something occurs as exciting as the night before Christmas: the average middle class home, the mother revolts, stages a marriage with the boy she loves but her mother doesn't call on a shuffle-footed old father to aid his assistance. "Father does his best between mopping dishes and drinking hard for."

"It is funny and pathetic."

"One of the verbal cudgels with which Mrs. Bumpstead has

Minute Reviews of Plays in NEW YORK

SHERLOCK HOLMES, at the New Amsterdam: The revival of this classic of mystery plays, written by William Gillette and Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, and first presented in New York in 1899, brings back a magic the theater seems to have lost. Gillette, now 74, as the silent masterful detective once more puts into flesh and blood Sir Arthur's world-famous character. It does seem as if mystery plays have become worse instead of better in 30 years, for this one makes some of the later ones look foolish, even if it does creep with age.

THE GAME OF LOVE AND DEATH, at the Knickerbocker: The Theater Guild for the second time this season gets considerable adverse criticism. This play of Romain Rolland's from the French, and one of a series of this noted writer's on the French revolution, seems dead weight. It reads well but acting it is another matter.

IT IS FUNNY AND PATHETIC.

OHIO COLORS WILL BE PROMINENT AT LIVESTOCK SHOW

CHICAGO, Nov. 29.—The colors of the Buckeye state will be vividly apparent in the galaxy of livestockdom when the International Live Stock Exposition celebrates its thirtieth anniversary at Chicago November 30 to December 7.

With twenty-one different breeds of livestock on the entry list, sent from the feedlots and stables of thirty-two of the foremost purebred establishments in Ohio, a wide representation of the state's varied farm population will be on display.

Famed throughout the country as a source supply of some of the best draft horses in America, Ohio's leading horsemen will uphold the reputation of the state in the national competition at the Chicago exposition. Those who favor the Percheron horse, and by their winnings with this breed at former internationals have done much to advertise Ohio's choice horse population, are Woodside Farms, of Columbus, whose stallion, Sir Laet, was the grand-champion Percheron stallion at the 1928 international exposition; A. K. Basore of Norwalk, a winner in past years; G. A. Dix, of Delaware, who won two blue ribbons in the important group classes at last year's horse show in Chicago; Ralph W. Humes, of Delaware, a successful showman in past years; and William B. Murray, of Rochester.

Another of Ohio's well-known Percheron horse breeders, who is entered in the coming exposition with six show horses, is Glenn S. Sonner, a winner of several blue and top ribbons in the 1928 Percheron competition at Chicago. Other exhibitors of this breed, which the exposition management announces have entries are Edwin W. Wolf, of Kenton; W. C. Ziegler, of Delaware; and Cecil A. Reed, of London.

Ohio also boasts of some of the best specimens of the Belgian draft horse to found in America. Indicative of this fact was the coveted grand-championship in the stallion classes of this breed going to an Ohio firm at last year's international Live Stock Exposition, when Charles A. Wentz and Sons, of Kirby, Ohio, received this high honor on their stallion, Loreau 2nd. This famous horse first won the championship at the Chicago show in 1927, when his owners were presented with the "King Albert Cup" annually awarded to the exhibitor of the grand-champion Belgian stallion, as a recognition from the king of the Belgians.

Besides Wentz and Sons, Ohio Belgians will be shown at Chicago this year by Lower Gwynne Farm, of Mt. Sterling; Ohio State University, Elva Stover and Son, Carlos Snyder and Sons, of New London, and Sweet Briar Farm, of Gate Mills.

DAYTON MAN WILL HEAD TRAFFIC CLUB

B. E. Olsen, traffic manager of the McCall Co., Dayton, heads the tickets of both committees for presidency of the Miami Valley Club. The regular or governing board has nominated a slate of candidates and there is also a membership ticket.

One former Xenian figure in the campaign which has already opened and will close with the balloting February 4, 1930. He is Arthur C. Bales, manager of the Universal Car Leasing and Distributing Co., Dayton, who is a nominee for treasurer on the membership ticket.

SECOND CRASH VICTIM

CYNTHIANA, Ky., Nov. 29. — Clarence Franklin, 30, is dead as a result of injuries in an auto accident Sunday, in which Miss Bertha Kichey, 29, his companion, was killed.

Innocent Victims in Chicago Tragedy

The innocent suffer privation and other evils as a direct result of the faults of some other person. Such is the fate of Mrs. Samuel T. O'Brien and her two-year-old daughter, Mary Louise, who are innocent victims of a sorry triangle shooting in Chicago. Their husband and father with Mrs. Genevieve O'Brien is held for the shooting of William O'Brien. (Right) Mrs. O'Brien, accused of aiding in her husband's slaying, supported by a police matron as she gazed at the jurors at the inquest.

Farm Notes

ALFALFA, WARM WATER INCREASE WINTER EGGS

Alfalfa or green feed, warm water and artificial light in addition to a good grain ration and good management are necessary to high winter egg production, according to P. R. Record, assistant in the poultry division at the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station.

These are all practical and come as near as possible to duplicating spring conditions when egg production is naturally at its peak. In spring there is an abundance of green feed. Experiments at the Ohio Station have proved that properly cured alfalfa is an excellent substitute for fresh green feed which may be difficult to supply in winter.

The alfalfa leaves may be fed whole or ground into alfalfa meal and mixed in the mash at the rate of five pounds per hundred pounds of mash, or if good alfalfa hay is available it may be chopped and placed in suitable hay feeders and kept before the hens at all times.

It is also essential that the hens consume plenty of water. They will do it clean warm water is kept before them throughout the day. They will not drink enough water if it is cold or if it is before them only a short time.

In spring the days are longer giving the birds more time in which
